POLICEMAN MISSES COUGAR WITH SHOT

Vacationing Mountie Says Beast Roaming High Quadra Six-Footer; Mothers Cautious

A six-foot-long cougar today continued to elude hunters in the high rocky and wooded country east of Quadra Street between Lake Hill and Cloverdale, but almost fell to a police officer's pistol shot late Tuesday night.

Cpl. M. R. "Bud" Godfrey of the R.C.M.P. highway patrol was within 30 feet of the big cat but failed to find a mark on the slinking target.

"I'm going to have another try for him today and I hope I get my sights lined up on him again," said the corporal, who is on holidays. The officer said his target was not clear in the light afforded but he could see the animal was about a six-footer.

NOT ALARMED

Saatchi police report that residents in the area do not appear unduly alarmed at the presence of the mountain lion near their homes, although many mothers are keeping their children indoors in the area.

The cougar is not considered a danger to humans unless ravens are hungry. As there is no evidence of the cat making farm raids to find prey to feed on, parents would be well advised not to allow their children to flirt with danger.

First to see the animal was Edward Middleton, 3532 Quadra Street, at 6 a.m. Tuesday as it ran along Quadra and up Hollis Road.

Game Warden Joseph Jones chased it with his cougar hound, "Tucky," but after a 90-minute hunt lost the cat's trail.

SECOND SIGHTING

The skulking cougar was spotted again at 9:10 Tuesday night. Mrs. G. Rochon, 1246 Tattersall Drive, saw it walk across her property and disappear into the bush.

Although they were on the job until after midnight, Game Wardens Robert Sinclair and Jones, with the dog, could not find the animal.

Police are urging residents who see the tawny-colored giant of the cat family to get in touch with them. The dog will be put on every trail as soon as possible.

It is hoped to get a track fresh enough so that the dog can follow through to treeing the cougar. A scent does not stay around long under present hot-weather conditions.

City Schools Expect Record 12,000 Pupils

A record-shattering enrollment of 12,000 children, 500 more than last year, is expected when classrooms of the Greater Victoria school system open Sept. 4 for the fall term, J. F. K. English, municipal inspector of schools, said today.

Approximately 20 additional teachers will be required, he said.

The school system had 410 teachers last year and expect about 430 this fall, exclusive of Victoria College staff.

"We are now getting teachers for next year and arranging staff organization of schools for the re-opening," Mr. English said.

Helping to accommodate the increased school population will be newly-constructed Cadboro Bay Elementary which will be ready by September. A three-classroom building, it will provide for 90 students.

Alterations and addition to Strawberry Vale School, to be completed by September will provide for another 80 pupils, along with the 100 already accommodated.

Alterations to Esquimalt High School, however, will not be completed by the September opening, according to Mr. English.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—The costliest flood in the nation's history drew 10 governors and top federal officials to Kansas City today for a one-day Missouri River states conference on flood relief.

Gov. Val Peterson, Nebraska, presided as the historic conference opened in the municipal auditorium.

Govs. Forrest Smith, Missouri, and Edward F. Arn, Kansas, joined Peterson in outlining the two-fold aim of the meeting: 1. To plan for immediate relief for victims.

3 SKELETONS AND 8-YEAR WRECK: POLICE DUBIOUS

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP)—Police investigators believe reports of the finding of three skeletons in an eight-year-old car wreck at the southern end of the trans-provincial highway are the "figment of an overworked imagination."

The reports originated with a motorist who claimed to have talked to a bus-driver who came across the wreck, bearing 1943 Saskatchewan or Manitoba license plates, while driving a flat tire last Friday.

Police interviewed 18 bus drivers and checked every bus company operating services in the area but the only clue came from a Nelson Greyhound driver who reported finding a wreck last Wednesday.

The driver said, however, that there were no skeletons in the car and that the accident appeared to have happened recently.

Colossal Aircraft Orders Possible

$100,000,000 Worth Of Training Airplane Bids Reported In Sight

MONTREAL (CP)—Two multi-million-dollar production orders which would boost the Canadair Company's aircraft-making plant into the ranks of the world's big producers were understood today to be the subject of negotiations between the Canadian and United States governments.

Canadair officials refused all comment but it was learned that the United States air force has placed an order for $100,000,000 worth of training aircraft with Canadair is incorrect.

In Ottawa a defense production department official said the U.S.A.F. may soon place an order for $50,000,000 worth of training aircraft, to be produced at Canadair if the order goes through.

Meanwhile, the Montreal company is continuing to tool up and there is anticipation that the employee roster of some 6,000 men will be boosted in the next few months to 10,000 as a result of new orders.

It is understood that Canadair will undertake manufacture of the T-33 jet trainer aircraft for the R.C.A.F. No figures were available from the company but recent reports from Ottawa have placed the number at 500 or thereabouts. The aircraft is an approximate cost of $200,000 each—a total of $100,000,000.

T-36 BOMBER-TRAINER

Canadair has been named by U.S. authorities as a "prime contractor" for U.S. army air force and on a basis of this rating orders for manufacture of the T-36 piston-engine bomber-trainer are anticipated.

Again no figures are available.

Army Sergeant, Father Of Three, Drowns Here

War veteran Sgt. James O. Simmonds, 28, of 119 Battery, R.C.A., Gordon Head Camp, formerly of Winnipeg, drowned in Thetis Lake on a swimming party with soldier friends today.

It was the third lake drowning death in Victoria and district this year. Two youths drowned earlier this summer at Beaver Lake.

Dr. E. C. Hart, coroner, ordered an inquest into the death tomorrow at the Thomson Funeral Home at 10:30 a.m. The drowning occurred at approximately 1:30 a.m.

A wounded veteran of the P.P.C.I. in the Italian campaign of the Second World War, Sgt. Simmonds had been in the army for nine years. He is survived by his wife, Joan, and three children, living in the new family quarters of the army on Peters Street, Esquimalt.

R.C.M.P. called to the scene about 2 a.m., were at the first unable to locate the body. They resumed operations at dawn with dragging equipment secured from the city police and recovered the body at 7 a.m.

Sgt. Simmonds was with Sgt. G. B. Bulmer, W.O. II L. M. Amundson and A/Sgt. Campbell on the way back to camp when they decided to stop off at the lake for a swim.

Sgt. Simmonds was swimming apart from the others when he suddenly cried for aid and sank. It is believed he suffered a cramp, probably resulting from the stomach wound he sustained in Italy, his friends said.

The proposed meeting of the U.S., Britain and France on the question of West Germany's contribution to the Atlantic Pact forces in Europe also is likely to be held in Washington before the Ottawa talks.

Both Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison and Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell are likely to take part.

Shinwell probably also will attend talks on the standardization of small arms expected to be held in Washington in early August among the defense ministers of the United States, Canada, France and Britain—the military standardization agency of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

'SECRET DEVELOPMENTS'

Russians Have Bomber For Surprise Attack

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Air Undersecretary John A. McCone said today the Russians have a bomber able to "carry the atomic bomb a long distance and to deliver it in a surprise attack."

In an address prepared for delivery at Stanford University, McCone also said there has been "phenomenal development" of Russian jet fighters.

As to Soviet atomic progress, McCone said the Russians have worked energetically in the atomic field for many years and their scientists "have had available to them some of our secret developments" gained by Soviet secret agents.

Russian versions of the B-29 bomber "have been seen in operation, not singly but in quantity," McCone said. He added that the number of this bomber type is a matter of conjecture but "we do know they are building into their military system their long-range bombing capability of substantial proportions which can reach the cities and production centres of the United States."

As to Soviet atomic progress, McCone said the Russians have worked energetically in the atomic field for many years and VANCOUVER (CP)—Forest Rangers are investigating a report of a new fire on Redonda Island off central Vancouver Island, today, as B.C. Forest Service officials report most other blazes are under control.

The new fire, reported by Pilot Bill Cooper, of B.C. Central Airways, was said to be eating deeply into green timber.

BRITISH CONSIDER NEW OIL PROPOSAL

Latest Terms For Settlement Of Iran Crisis Reported Not 'Discouraging'

LONDON (AP)—British government leaders huddled today over an Iranian plan for reopening talks between the two countries on their bitter oil nationalization dispute.

Informed sources said a cabinet session will be held tomorrow on the new turn in the crucial row.

Iran's terms for renewing oil negotiations were sent here Tuesday along with suggestions by U.S. negotiator W. Averell Harriman, who has been consulting for more than a week in Tehran with Iran's government leaders.

A British Embassy spokesman in Tehran said today Britain wants the Iranian government to "relax its interference" in operations of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company before reopening of talks.

The spokesman said the Iranians should show proof of goodwill and a willingness to "give and take" in the negotiations by curbing their interference in the operations of the oil fields and the Anglo-Iranian refinery at Abadan, where production has slowed to a comparative trickle.

Commenting on the Iranian proposals, a Foreign Office spokesman here said "they are not wholly discouraging."

Informed sources in Tehran said the Iranian proposal was

New Mill Site Picketed In Jurisdictional Fight

A jurisdictional dispute between Victoria Local 1598 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (A.F.L.-C.I.O.) and the International Woodworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) resulted today in a five-man carpenter picket line being thrown around B.C. Forest Products Ltd., 371 George Road.

The carpenters charged I.W.A. men have exceeded their jurisdiction by taking construction jobs on B.C.F.P.'s new $1,500,000 plywood mill; now in initial stages of construction. The pickets claim carpenters should be employed to do the work.

I.W.A. men employed by B.C. Contractors Ltd., a Vancouver firm which is to construct the mill, paid no heed to the carpenter picket line and started work at the usual time.

An official of the carpenters' union contended today that under terms of agreement made between itself and the I.W.A. in 1944, it was recognized that carpenters should do all new construction work at any mill, and that I.W.A. men should do all maintenance work.

Ernest Oliver, president of the carpenters' local, said the union was taking direct action against B.C. Forest Products Ltd., by boycotting the firm and declaring all materials from the company as "hot." Union carpenters, he said, would refuse to handle any material coming from the firm until the matter in dispute was settled.

Herbert Barnes, Victoria manager for B.C. Forest Products, said he was not worried about the union's picket line and did not expect business to be affected by it. He said the mill firm regarded itself as an innocent party in the dispute, and could see no justification for the carpenters' action.

In addition to servicemen, uniformed civilians with the Commonwealth forces in Korea or Korean waters would qualify for it.

Terms Said 'Reasonable' By U.N. Cease-Fire Delegates

U.N. ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea (AP)—Communist cease-fire negotiators today advanced a new proposal on withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea. A United Nations spokesman called it "reasonable in content and phraseology."

Brig.-Gen. William Nuckols, who attended today's sessions, said the new Red proposition was "more temperate and reasonable in tone" than previous Communist demands.

Officially the U.N. said the new Chinese and North Korean suggestion on troop withdrawals was "sufficiently interesting" for Allied delegates to propose an overnight recess for further study.

Neither Nuckols nor the U.N. communique indicated exactly how the Reds had modified their demand.

Offer Follows Long Recess

The five Communist generals brought out their new plan after a three-day recess. They had asked for the recess Saturday to consult with their governments on the troop withdrawal demand which had threatened to break up discussions.

Before presenting his revised suggestion at today's ninth meeting, North Korean General Nam Il asked for and received a further clarification of United Nations opposition to the original Red demand. This was done in a 53-minute morning session.

Then, in the afternoon, Nam presented the new idea.

After a recess, a rapid-fire exchange followed between Nam and Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the U.N. delegation.

This clarified just what the Communists were driving at. Joy then suggested adjournment until tomorrow afternoon for full study of the new idea by the Allies.

To make sure there was no mistake, each side supplied the other with key portions of their positions in writing.

Nuckols said these were the first written exchanges between the opposing delegations in nine days of meetings.

Wednesday's sessions ended in an atmosphere of "Now we are getting somewhere," Nuckols said.

Negotiators still are talking about what subjects shall be listed on the agenda for discussion in the actual cease-fire talks.

Nuckols declined to comment when asked if the Communists' new proposal agreed with the U.N. stand that withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea was not a proper subject for cease-fire discussions.

Up to Wednesday's sessions Communist delegates had insisted that withdrawal of foreign troops was an essential part of these negotiations.

An official communique said "considerable progress" was made during the day.

Nuckols indicated the new Communist proposal would be studied in Washington and at United Nations headquarters in addition to being carefully examined here and in Tokyo.

Nuckols said he had no idea how much longer the Kaesong conference would last. But, he said, Wednesday's developments "knocked into a cocked hat" recent pessimistic predictions.

The North Koreans' Pyongyang radio in a bare announcement of the day said, "both parties still did not reach unanimity of views" on the troop question.

The Reds, heretofore have insisted that the issue of pulling foreign troops out—U.N. forces and Chinese Reds—should be on the program of armistice talks.

Defense Secretary George C. Marshall, laying down the U.N. position, said Tuesday the question is not suitable one for consideration in the armistice negotiations.

Responsible information here is that the new Communist offer the most the U.N. allies would have to undertake is a promise to discuss arrangements under which the whole foreign troops problem would be taken up later.

This probably means that out of the armistice talks, or perhaps parallel with them, some understanding will be reached for negotiations to be held among interested governments on the political issues of a permanent Korean settlement.

However, even assuming that this understanding clears the way for the Kaesong talks to go forward promptly, at least two other serious issues are said to remain.

These are reported to concern (1) the selection of a demarcation line between the belligerent inspection procedures to be sure forces and (2) arrangement of that the truce, once established, is not broken.

The plane left here Friday night en route to Anchorage, Alaska, its first stop on a flight to Tokyo. Its last reported position was over Cape Spencer, 500 miles south of Anchorage.

Expect Approval By U.N.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communists were reported today to have offered a compromise in the Korean cease-fire talks under which withdrawal of foreign

'Get Acheson' Is Republican Party Aim

WASHINGTON (AP)—At a sharply-split party meeting, a majority of Republicans in the House of Representatives agreed, today, to support a plan aimed at striking State Secretary Dean Acheson off the Federal payroll.

The decision to pursue the "get-Acheson" drive through the medium of the State Department appropriation bill was taken by a standing vote of 71 to 33.

More than 90 Republicans either did not attend or refrained from voting.

The majority approved a motion to support an amendment to the State Department money bill.

Party leaders said the amendment, still to be drafted, would not designate Acheson by name but would specify that no Federal pay would go to any "policy-making" department head who, at any time during the five years preceding appointment, belonged to a business or law firm that represented a foreign government.

Acheson's law firm once represented Poland.

Representative John Phillips (Rep. Calif.), sponsor of the amendment, told reporters it would be offered late today or tomorrow. He said it would embody the principle that the policy-making heads of a major department "should be perfectly clear of any suspicion of previous obligation to or representation of a foreign government."

CANBERRA (Reuters)—A special medal is to be struck for Commonwealth forces in Korea, Prime Minister G. Menzies announced today. The King has given his approval, he said.

The award, to be called the Korea Medal and made of Cupra nickel, will hang from a ribbon of blue and yellow, the blue representing the United Nations. Designs for the medal have yet to be determined.

In addition to servicemen, uniformed civilians with the Commonwealth forces in Korea or Korean waters would qualify for it.

EGGS AND MILK

THIS BEING THE SEASON when eggs soar in price because of a disinclination on the part of hens to lay and of the inclination of prices of everything to go up, instead of down, it may be timely to reflect upon the egg situation in Britain.

While we were recently staying in a hotel in the West End of London, eggs were rationed out to the guests at the rate of one per week—a fried egg, at that, doled out in solitary state, unaccompanied, except very rarely, by bacon or ham, but sometimes in such strange company as smoked haddock or a kipper. It was only in the country that the egg situation was a little easier, especially if our hosts happened to keep a chicken or two.

GAMBIA GAMBLE

SPACE DOESN'T PERMIT my going into all the economic and other factors governing the egg situation over there; but suffice it to say that, during the war years and for several years after, Britons rarely saw an egg except in the dried, powdered state—no matter how much they were prepared to pay for them in the shell, "au naturel," so to speak.

In sheer desperation, the British government in 1948 tried an experiment in Gambia, Africa, with the object of providing more eggs for home consumption. A batch of 10,000 eggs were flown from America and soon 7,000 Rhode Island Reds of a size, weight and plumage to dazzle the Darkest Continent were strutting towards the ultimate objective of 20,000,000 eggs a year for Britons.

LACKED VITAMINS

BUT, AS IN MANY another case, it was a case of "Man proposes, but God disposes," for the soil of Gambia, grimly conquered from the bush, could not provide the vitamins. The result was that fertility and hatchability of the eggs went wrong, and, to add to the disaster, 30,000 birds were lost by fowl typhoid.

What with one thing and another, the 4,000,000 eggs which had been expected from Gambia the first season dwindled to an actual total of 39,000 eggs received in egg-hungry Britain. As the scheme had cost the British taxpayers, in all, $825,000 (about $2,575,000) it brought the cost of each egg up to about $66, which seems a bit high, even to a Canadian consumer.

MOSCOW AND EGGS

TALKING OF EGGS reminds me of an incident of which we learned while in Copenhagen. It appears that the Danish Minister in Moscow decided, as an economy measure, to import as much food as possible from his native land. Among the first consignments to arrive were 400 well-packed eggs.

But when the Legation cook attempted to fry one it was discovered that they were all hard-boiled. Inquiries in Copenhagen disclosed that the eggs from that agricultural country had all been packed in their raw state, as one would expect. So the inquiries were next directed to the Soviet authorities, who thereupon admitted that the Danish eggs had all been stopped in transit and boiled in Moscow.

HARD-BOILED!

THE EXPLANATION given was on a par with some of the other explanations given by Soviet authorities for their "hard-boiled" attitude on other matters pertaining to other countries. It was that the Soviet could not risk having her own hens infected by such germs as might be contained in eggs from "an under-developed agricultural country"—to quote the exact words of the Soviet official explanation.

I tried to find out what the Danish Minister—and his fellow-Danes—had to say about this affront to one of the most highly developed agricultural countries in the world. But I couldn't. No doubt it was unprintable and unrepeatable—even in Danish. Or perhaps it was too "hard-boiled."

MILK AND MINDS

THAT BRINGS ME, too, to the subject of milk, which is very much in the public mind just now. Not long ago certain Russian writers, authors of an arithmetic book for children of 8 to 12 years, were hauled up on the carpet because they included in the textbook an arithmetic problem which spoke of 68 cows producing 2,520 litres of milk.

According to the party newspaper, Ivestia, such "problems" were extremely harmful to young Soviet minds because such youthful readers would fail to realize that 60 Soviet cows could, of course, produce much more than 2,520 litres of milk!

Fire Regulation Violator Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Violations of fire regulations instituted by the forestry department to cope with dry spell hazards have sent a mission farmer to jail for 90 days, and brought fines against four Vancouver and Haney residents and one logging company.

Two other logging companies, one at Mission and the other at Powell River, face prosecution, B.C. forest officials said today.

Magistrates in Vancouver, the Fraser Valley and at an upcoast centre meted out the sentences as fire officials cracked down on violators of precautionary regulations.

Strike Prospect Hangs Over Timmins Goldfields

Union, Management Remain Deadlocked After Government Mediation Fails

TORONTO (CP)—The prospect of a long strike hung over the Timmins goldfields today as union and management remained deadlocked over union security provisions.

Government attempts to settle the two-week-long strike of 1,600 employees at Hollinger mines failed yesterday after 5½ hours of discussion with company officials and executives of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

Labor Minister Daley said after the meeting that the stumbling block to settlement of the strike was the question of union dues check-off.

He said the company had rejected a government suggestion that the two parties attempt first to settle their wage differences, leaving until later the matter of the check-off.

His proposal was that 60 days after wage agreement is reached a vote be taken among the employees on the check-off. If 60 per cent voted in favor of it, a voluntary revocable check-off would be instituted in the Hollinger Mine, the largest on the continent.

On the question of wages, four cents separates the management and employees. The union wants a 17-cent-an-hour increase. The company has offered benefits which it says total 13 cents an hour.

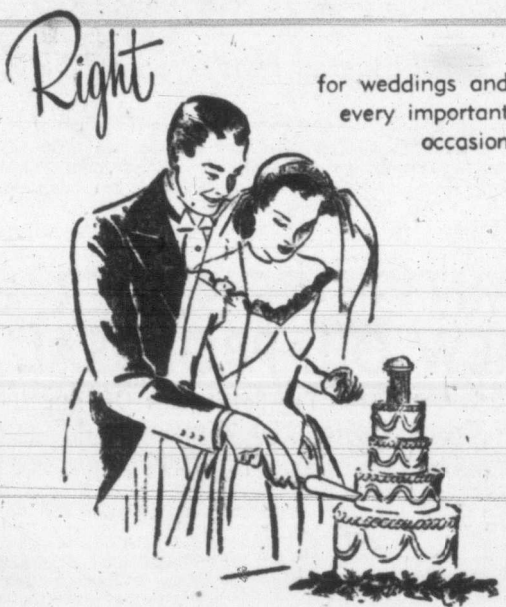

The union's spokesman, William Sefton, head of the mining section, declared that the company's position was "fantastic." He told reporters that the union was prepared to recommend acceptance of the formula by employees.

"It is extremely hard to understand their attitude in view of the fact that they were the ones who

Air-Age Romance Ends In Marriage Next Wednesday

LONDON (AP)—Two months ago Sgt. William Griggs, of the United States Air Force, was waiting at London airport for a plane to New York.

When he boarded it four hours later, he was engaged to an English girl he met while waiting.

Next Wednesday in Akron, O., the air-age romance will be climaxed by his marriage to pretty Winifred Spears, a receptionist for British Overseas Airways Corporation.

"That first time we met, I was busy with a plane load of passengers," Miss Spears told a reporter today. "I had to speak to him between answering other passengers' questions and rushing about with tickets."

"Just before he left to catch his plane he asked: 'Will you marry me and come to live in America?'"

"He was very handsome in his uniform and wings. I said yes."

Gypsy 'Princess' Booked On Swindling Charges

NEW YORK (AP)—A Coney Island gypsy "princess" was accused today of swindling a Brooklyn mother of her $7,011 life savings on the pretext of bringing her dead soldier son home alive.

Lumber Carriers Get Load Warning

A warning that if mills did not watch the load limits of their lumber carrying trucks, City Council might have to approach them on the matter "for safety's sake," has been issued by Acting Mayor Frank G. Mulliner.

"It definitely seems to me that loads are bigger than ever," he said. "They are a menace."

The trucks and lumber carriers, he added, must go through the city's main streets to get from the mills to the docks, increasing the hazard to the general public should a load topple over.

Police identified the gypsy as Mrs. Hazel Lee, 35, and charged her with grand larceny.

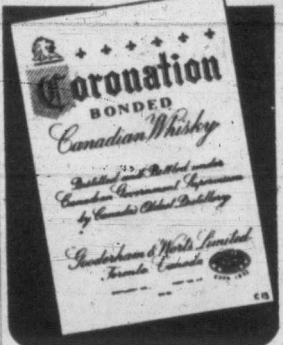

They said Mrs. Virginia Solomon of Brooklyn told this story: The defense department notified her in January that her son, Arnold, had been killed in action in Korea. She refused to believe it.

The gypsy accosted her from a booth at Coney Island last May 13—Mother's Day. The mother told her troubles. The gypsy suggested that her money was a curse—that if the curse were removed, the son might return.

After she surrendered the last of her "bad" money, at weird meetings, a package of her son's belongings arrived home last week. Her hope finally died. So did her gullibility. She notified the district attorney's office.

Allied Forces In Germany Will Outnumber Reds

Canada Contributes To 500,000 Strength

BONN, Germany (AP)—Allied armies in Germany will outnumber Russian troops now in the east zone by nearly 200,000 men by the end of this year, an informed Allied source said today.

The planned Allied build-up will put nearly 500,000 men in Germany compared with estimated Russian strength of about 300,000, the source said.

The Allied plan provides for the equivalent of 18 divisions and a "considerably increased" British-U.S. air force.

Opposing Allied and Russian forces in Germany now are about equal, the source added.

Intelligence reports show no indication of a Russian build-up at present.

Eight Allied countries are contributing to the forces expected to overtake Russian strength in Germany for the first time in six years.

They are: U.S., Britain, France, Canada, Belgium, Norway, Denmark and Luxembourg.

PLAN IN DETAIL

The outline plan is this: U.S.: Divisions to be increased from the present four to six, which with air force reinforcements, will make about 210,000 men.

—Britain: An armored division is to be added to the present three and one-third divisions, and the R.A.F. considerably increased. Estimated total about 150,000.

—France: Two more divisions are due, making a total of five and, with supporting and supply units, a total manpower of 80,000.

—Belgium: Two divisions to be brought up to full strength of more than 30,000.

—Canada: A big brigade group of 7,000 men and 11 air squadrons have been promised.

—Luxembourg: Has two infantry battalions in Germany.

The figures do not include over 100,000 Germans who are doing operational jobs for the Allied armies.

I.C.A. Probers Stand Pat On Political Group Ban

Arthur Ash, chairman of the special legislative committee inquiring into all phases of the I.C.A. Act was called upon today to reiterate that his committee would hear no submission by the Labor Progressive Party or any other political group.

In a curt statement, Mr. Ash explained his committee did not intend to let itself be used by political groups desiring publicity and that the L.P.P. would not be given a hearing.

The chairman's remarks came in answer to a strongly worded protest from Maurice Rush, Vancouver, labor secretary of the L.P.P. organization in B.C.

Mr. Rush, who protested earlier to Labor Minister John Cates only to be told the committee of inquiry ran its own affairs and made its own rules, charged in his letter to the committee chairman that the inquiry would be only a farce.

Charging that the present labor code was anti-labor and pro-management, Mr. Rush demanded to know: "Why should any organization interested in labor and labor legislation be denied the opportunity of placing its proposals before a Legislative committee? The public and every trade unionist will demand an answer to this question."

"The attempt of the board to silence the L.P.P. shows not only bias," his letter went on, "but fear of the proposals."

The L.P.P., he maintained, was only concerned in having a law that would be in the interests of the workers.

He charged the law at present throttled collective bargaining and that certification requirements acted the same as government licensing, through which unions could be government controlled.

Pacific Institute Faces Further Senate Probe

WASHINGTON (UP)—An official of the controversial Institute of Pacific Relations faced questioning today in a new Senate investigation of subversion and Communist activity.

E. C. Carter, trustee of the private research organization, was summoned before the Senate internal security subcommittee for questioning on a letter he sent to Alger Hiss, former state department official.

Hiss is serving a five-year jail sentence for lying in connection with his denial that he gave secret papers to Whittaker Chambers, admitted former Communist spy courier.

The L.P.R. played a leading part in charges by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) that the state department was infested with Communists.

Other congressional developments: Acheson—House Republican leaders presented their "Get Acheson" plan to a meeting of the full Republican membership of the House. They hoped to tack a rider on the pending state department appropriations bill, cutting off Acheson's salary and forcing him out of office.

FAVORS DEMOCRATS—Elections—Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D., N.M.) said "statistics" favor Democrats in the 1952 election regardless of the outcome of the presidential race.

Controls—The question of whether to permit rollbacks on items other than beef was the first major hurdle facing House-Senate conferees who got to work on a compromise controls bill.

Spending—The Senate executive expenditures committee proposed a joint "watch-dog" committee to keep tabs on every nickel spent by the government.

This Power Is Ours

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT should not agree to the damming of the Kootenai River in the United States and the inundation of land in British Columbia unless British Columbia is guaranteed part of the resulting power supply. The development of these boundary waters for power purposes is to the advantage of both the neighboring nations. But we should make sure that we get our share of the industrial energy thus created. We may not need the power at the moment. Assuredly we shall need it soon as our industries expand.

The Libby dam project south of the border, by which the Kootenai River would be backed up into southern British Columbia, is part of a developing international network of power in the Pacific Northwest. Since the rivers providing it—the Kootenai, the Columbia and the Skagit, for example—cross the boundary their power is a joint Canadian-American asset. All Canada has a right to ask is a fair portion of it, in proportion to our contribution.

In the case of the Libby project it is not necessary that we should take the power direct. Sound engineering and economics may suggest that all this power be used in the United States. If so, we should be guaranteed a power supply from some other American source in the expanding Northwest grid.

Power sites and their product should not be regarded as ordinary exports. When we alienate a water supply to another nation we are exporting one of our most valuable capital assets, which we cannot replace, as we can replace ordinary exports. We are losing the source of permanent and incalculable production, including exports, in the future. Hence all boundary water developments should be worked out on a long-term plan in friendly conference with the Americans.

On the Columbia system the Libby dam is only the first stage in a much larger scheme. On the Big Bend of the river, near its source, a dam will be built not long hence first to control the river's flow and keep it constant south of the border and, second, to develop a new power production. The needs of the Big Bend project must be kept in mind when the present Libby project is arranged. Again, in such works as the control of the Okanagan against floods we must consider the effects on the salmon fisheries of the United States, which is attempting to create new spawning grounds on the Columbia's tributaries.

The International Joint Commission on boundary waters so far has never failed to settle all such questions satisfactorily between the two nations, and no doubt will succeed in the case of the Libby dam. It is essential, however, that the British Columbia government protect the interests of this province. It should make its views known to the joint commission more effectively than it has done so far.

After discussions here a few days ago the joint commission does not seem to have left with a clear recommendation from the government. Has the government insisted on a share of the new power? The official statements give us no assurance on this point.

It will not do to say that we have no immediate need for more power in the southern interior. Our industries will require it there or elsewhere before long, and if it is alienated now it will be gone forever. We should seek maximum markets for our current production in the United States. We should never export our capital assets, and the Americans do not expect us to export them. No payment in money (which would be soon spent and gone) could compensate us for such a permanent loss of wealth.

That Surplus Again

EVEN IF MR. ABBOTT'S REVENUE surplus were as large as his Conservative critics say, it would be healthy and desirable at a time of inflation. But, as the Financial Post reports from Ottawa, it is likely to prove quite small by the year's end.

In the first two months of the fiscal year which began April 1 Mr. Abbott collected $275 millions more than he spent. Many people seem to think that, at this rate, Mr. Abbott will pile up a surplus of a billion and a half during the full year. Unfortunately he will be able to do nothing of the sort.

In the first two months of the fiscal year defence spending was low, since the rearmament program was just getting well under way. The defence departments propose to spend $1.75 billions in twelve months, or at the rate of $290 millions every two months. Actually, in April and May they spent only $98 millions. But they are increasing their expenditures every day and will spend their full appropriations by March 31 next.

The two-month surplus, apparently $275 millions, is thus in reality a potential surplus of $80 millions. Yet even this estimate is deceptive. All government departments, on various capital accounts, spend slowly in the first part of the fiscal year and rapidly later on. By the end of the year the government always finds huge amounts of unexpected bills which must be met either out of collected revenue or out of the following year's taxes.

When all these things are considered Mr. Abbott's surplus begins to melt. If revenues continue high as at present it may still be substantial but we do not know yet the full amount of our future costs. The rearmament program may have to be expanded. We are heading into gigantic new costs for old age pensions which of themselves will require heavy new increases in taxes whether we have a surplus or not. And when our national debt is far too large and costs in interest alone as much as the whole pre-war budget, when a surplus can be used to reduce this debt and when high taxes are an essential weapon against inflation, it is far too early to attack Mr. Abbott for collecting too much revenue. The Conservative campaign against him may be good politics. It is bad economics and reckless finance.

'Too Long For His Glory'

THE DEATH OF MARSHAL HENRI Philippe Pétain at the age of 95 on the tiny isle to which he had been banished put an end to a life which must have become a burden to the former French hero. His fall from the heights of national adulation to the depths of national disgrace, his sentencing to life imprisonment, his final days in exile and ill-health bear all the marks of Greek tragedy.

Pétain must have laughed at omens of misfortune as he climbed the long ladder to military prominence. His exploits in the First Great War, his winning of the marshal's baton, his stature as a man of affairs, his acceptance of the call to lead France in her hour of peril in the second world conflict—these, surely, were not portents of downfall, could not be the prelude to disaster.

But somewhere, unnoticed amid the acclaim, was a flaw. The climber on fortune's ladder had an Achilles' heel which eventually received its fatal wound. Although Marshal Pétain fought for democracy he did not fully believe in it. He would die for it, as a good soldier; but he would not die with it when, temporarily, it was extinguished in France by the Nazi invaders.

He served France, but he failed to serve the higher ideal of liberty for which Frenchmen stood. Pétain sought compromise with the enemy. He made his peace with totalitarianism. And France could not forget.

There are still those who support Pétain's record, who are confident that history will deal kindly with him, who believe that the final decade of his life cannot wipe out the successes of more than three-quarters of a century. Pétain has not been accused of smallness. He sought no mean personal aggrandizement when he cast his lot with the German victors. He did what he thought was right—but it was wrong.

That is why the French newspaper Le Monde yesterday referred to "this man who without doubt lived too long for his glory," and why the Communist Ce Solt more cruelly published a picture of him in the company of Adolf Hitler, with the caption: "This is how Frenchmen will remember him."

Had he died in battle, even a losing battle, Pétain would have been remembered through the ages for his victories. But in death in a hospital on Ile d'Yeu, he will unfortunately for evermore be identified with defeat—his country's and his own.

Britain And The Merry-Go-Round

SOCIALISM IN BRITAIN IS FARING worse with inflation than private enterprise in America. While America at least has reached a breathing spell, a gradual leveling off of prices during the last few months and has the chance to effect fundamental remedies, Britain is moving into a new inflationary spiral.

The higher prices already developing in Britain are, in part anyway, a deliberate feature of government policy. The government, as Mr. Gaitskill, chancellor of the exchequer, says, wants higher prices to discourage the purchase and consumption of goods which the economy cannot produce. He is relying on the hated capitalist price system, which socialism always deplores.

But the government's plan is not accepted by the trades unions, which can easily smash it and seem likely to do so. The unions are now demanding large wage increases to compensate them for increased prices. The miners of the nationalized coal industry, whose wages generally set a standard throughout industry, have had two wage increases in the last year and are now demanding a third. Other powerful unions are bargaining for similar increases. If the government could let prices rise somewhat and discourage the demand for begin to cure inflation by the orthodox capitalist method. When rising prices merely result in rising wages the whole plan goes off the rails. Inflation is not cured. It is worsened.

Under these conditions, as The Manchester Guardian asks, what happens to the Welfare State? When the unions get more wages and hence can buy more goods, everybody else must take less goods out of a limited supply. The British family may get "free" state services, paid for in taxes, but if it gets less goods it will hardly call that welfare. In fact, welfare for the ordinary man must decline through inflation, as it always does anywhere.

Socialism is not responsible for Britain's fundamental poverty, which results from a lack of natural resources, excess population and the overnight spending of accumulated treasure in the last war. Whether Britain would be better or worse without socialism is another matter, which will be argued in general election not long hence. But one thing already is clear: When Mr. Coldwell, Mr. Winch and the other C.C.F. leaders tell us, as they have told us ever since the war, that socialism alone can cure inflation they are talking palpable nonsense. They know that now, if they read the news from Britain,

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

AN AMERICAN court has forced a transportation company to stop playing music in its buses and that has proclaimed a new doctrine called "freedom of attention." The American people are guaranteed by law against the interruption of their attention by outside distractions. But of course the law won't work. There is no freedom of attention left in the world. I am now referring here to the cascades of sound which constantly puncture the public ear and will soon reduce America to stone deafness. A few bus passengers in some American city may object to a radio playing on the way to work but they are a small minority. America as a whole loves sound. It will crowd around any pneumatic drill on the streets, will turn on the radio in the morning and even when retreating to the quiet of the summer woods will carry a portable sound machine with it, being terrified of silence. But even if this organized clamor could be prohibited by law there would be no freedom of attention so long as human beings could continue to make sounds with their vocal chords.

NO MAN'S attention is ever free among his fellows. A careful calculation would prove that a large part of every busy man's day is occupied in listening to conversation which he does not wish to hear and would be better without. It is a wonder that any work gets done when everybody is talking and hardly anybody is thinking.

I was discussing this problem today with my friend, Mr. Horace Snifkin who, in desperation, has retreated to the wilderness and talks only with the squirrels, the deer and the trees. He said that, before leaving the city, he had developed a pretty effective technique for dealing with conversation of his friends. The trick, he said, is to ignore it.

THIS requires practise and great strength of mind. Since you cannot escape the talker, you must learn not to hear him. You cannot close your ears but you can learn to close your mind. Still, since you must not be rude to your friends, and a business man must not insult his customers, you must appear to listen while fixing your thoughts firmly on something else.

Mr. Snifkin said he had reached a point where he could look fixedly at a customer and appear to follow every word while his new attention actually was concentrated on something important like the new woodshed he was building at his summer cottage. He said he could plan the entire woodshed, down to the last nail, and see the whole architecture clearly before him while appearing to consider a new life insurance policy offered by a talkative agent. His life had been insured over and over again, he said, while he was building a woodshed or painting a boat fifty miles away. He thus got a lot of work done during business hours while apparently wasting it, like other business men, in useless conference.

IN THE first stages of his training Mr. Snifkin never allowed his eye to meet that of the interrupter. In watching another man's face, he explained, you may begin to suspect that there is some intelligent mental process behind it and you will find yourself listening to him in spite of yourself. Therefore, he began by keeping his gaze trained sternly upon the other's collar or cuffs.

To make sure that his mind never wandered to the topic under discussion he invented various little devices like counting the polka dots on the other man's tie and the buttons on his vest, or considering whether the reddish spot on his shirt front was caused by strawberries, raspberries or lipstick. The learner in the art of unattention, you see, must cling to some counter distraction. It takes years of education before you can achieve a merciful blankness of the mind.

ABOVE all, you must seem to be interested in your companion's talk for if your attention wavers he will only talk the harder to attract it. Hence Mr. Snifkin's devilish little trick of interrupting the conversation with some telling and incisive comment. One of the best methods is to ask your friend if he would mind repeating what he has just said since it is too important to be misunderstood. This intelligent interest is sure to flatter him and this will give you time to concentrate more firmly on something else, like the woodshed.

Or you can train yourself to murmur mechanically such interjections as "Not really!" "Amazing!" "Fascinating!" or "Fantastic!" Mr. Snifkin says that for months on end he has lived outwardly in amazement, fascination and fantasy and become known everywhere as a sympathetic listener without ever hearing a word.

ALL GOOD business men, he believes, have secretly mastered this art and never hear a word. Otherwise they could not do their business. There are more polka dots, vest buttons and strawberry stains being counted these days than any talker realizes. But in the end the strain was too great for Mr. Snifkin. He retreated to the woods where, he says, there are sounds like bird song and the chirp of squirrels worth listening to. Safely out of human range, he has opened his ears again.

The Thai revolt was the nearest thing to a Conrad story that has come out of the Far East for some time. Perhaps some allowance should be made for the fact that Marshal Songgram, the Premier of Thailand, was the one who told the press conference at Bangkok about his exploits. But there are not many chiefs of states at the present time who would have the stamina to defy threats of shooting, jump from a burning ship, clad in shorts, swim a river under fire, and then persuade the rebels to quit.

However, Songgram has been a durable as well as a tough character. He held power under the Japanese, then came back and regained it in the post-war period. He has survived numerous attempts on his life, and probably regarded the short-lived revolt as a mere interlude.

NEVER GIVE UP

May I tell "Donald" not to despair. I once knew a man who promised rain for 21 days in succession and rain came on the 21st day. He claimed to have been right and, of course, he was right.

Nature was unkind to "Donald" here. There is no moisture in these high cirri and cirri-cumuli clouds, but when the nimbus clouds come there is rain in them and if charged with electricity, lightning and thunder as well, so cheer up "Donald."

SOME HA-MEAT

Listening to the radio CJVI with Ralph Pashley at 10.30, I was amazed and shocked that any person would ask the difference between horsemeat and beef. He evidently isn't acquainted with horses, and probably hasn't any pets.

I'm sure you would never see a farmer eating horsemeat—if he never had a bite of meat in his life—he loves his horses. Many people owe their lives and can thank God that their horses have saved their lives. Many people enjoy horseback riding. I'm sure they wouldn't consider eating the meat either.

If you have to eat meat—and if you have a dog, or cat, let's have it for supper! Probably you are better acquainted with those animals. Ralph—the idea makes me just as sick as the former idea.

If we must get cheaper meat why not get whalemeat back again. I wasn't at all bad. It didn't make any of my family sick, which I'm sure that I couldn't say for horsemeat. I wouldn't eat some if it were free.

FOR RAIN

The Saskatchewan rainmaker has been and gone. Any hopes that were raised when the local press announced that an invitation had been sent to the Regina rainmaker to come to Victoria and demonstrate his ability and power to make rain here about are a thing of the past, including those hopes that were in evidence at what time the poor operator of his gadget toiled in vain, night and day.

The pity of it all is that help was not sought where it is always available. Yes! it was, and is, as simple as that! If only the Saanich fruit growers—not to mention any others wanting rain—had prayerfully petitioned the Creator, Sustainer and Controller—with or without the help of the multiple denomination churches—for rain, needy ones would have cause for rejoicing long ago.

I know that there will not be found wanting scorers, at this simple claim of mine as the only way out of the present crisis. The same kind of unbelievers who would say that the wonderfully calm sea prevailing at the evacuation of Dunkirk, the victory of Wellington at Waterloo, torrential rain making it possible, the stalemate at the battle of the Somme from the same cause, are just coincidences.

CONDEMNED HOMES

With reference to the building housing the old men on Johnson Street, who is responsible for this wicked idea of destroying these peoples' homes when low rental housing is so scarce? While building costs are so high, surely attention should be directed to conserving, not destroying.

Each room in that building represents a home to some old soul, where he can enjoy a little privacy and independence, and have perhaps a cat or a canary. If the plumbing is unsatisfactory, why isn't it put in order? Couldn't some service club donate this?

It would seem that the Old Men's Home is in need of attention from the City Fathers when there are so many vacancies, and apparently, such great pressure has to be brought on individuals to get them to enter.

Competition In Air Power

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP
From Washington

ONE of the chief issues at Washington today is the proportion of defense investment between United States services. The navy is considered to be approximately 1/3 of the total. The army is reaching its planned man-power ceiling, although still deficient in many types of vital equipment. But while the curves of expansion of the brother services are thus leveling off, the Air Force expansion curve is to shoot upwards precipitately; and it is not to level off until annual air force expenditure is far above other army or navy.

But the reason why a greatly expanded air force is needed at this time are, in fact, quite unanswerable.

First, the air defense of the continental United States is rapidly becoming a larger and larger job. The Soviet atomic bomb stock is increasing continually, which means that the Kremlin is getting nearer; and nearer to the point where the war planners in Moscow can hope to deliver a crippling blow against the U.S. The existing Soviet strategic air force, of Ilyushin B-26s, is expanding. And at the recent air show in Moscow, the Soviets displayed a truly long-range heavy bomber of B-36 type, which air intelligence credits with a 5,000-mile radius.

Since the smaller and less costly standard Soviet heavy bomber can efficiently hit targets anywhere except in this hemisphere, the production of this huge, very long-range bomber can have only one purpose—to attack this continent.

Second, the threat of the Soviet strategic air force, to the U.S. and its allies, also increases the requirement for the American strategic air force. It was originally designed solely to destroy the industrial vitals of the Russian war machine. Its first priority must now be the destruction of Soviet strategic air. This is an immense task in itself.

Furthermore, it is essential for the destruction of the Soviet industrial vitals to go forward concurrently; otherwise the defense will learn from experience to take the measure of the offense. Thus, in effect, the American strategic air force must now be built big enough to do two jobs at once.

Third, the importance of tactical air in ground war is now so great that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff has evolved a rule of thumb—"The fewer divisions you have, the more air groups you need." For the defense of Western Europe, it is necessary for Gen. Eisenhower to have a tactical air force ready at all times for combat, which will be capable of dominating the very large Soviet tactical air force from the moment when the first shot is fired. For this purpose, alone, it may be necessary to double the present requirement for American tactical air power.

Now are these requirements, and the Soviet air threat that begets them, mere dreams of air propagandists. The new Soviet bomber of B-36 type is not the 10-engine jet that has been widely reported. It is a huge, four engine, plane, of fairly conventional design. But it exists, has been photographed, and by the magic of the intelligence analysts has been shown to have approximately the characteristics given above.

Equally, the U.S. air force actually has in its hands a MIG-15 engine, and has more than sufficiently examined the decidedly superior high temperature alloys and remarkably skillful welding that make this the best jet engine now in production.

In plain language, the Soviets have now been proven capable of building air power on an all-too-impressive scale. And if we do not wish to commit national suicide, American air power cannot be allowed to fall behind.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"THEY used to tell you," said the Elevator Man, "that it's smart to locate your business near your competitors. The best place to build your grocery store is among a bunch of other grocery stores."

The best place to sell suits is where everybody else is selling suits. At first glance that seems foolish. Why get right in amongst your opposition? But the argument is that when people want groceries or suits they'll shop around the area where the most stores with those things are located. The grocery store away out among the hardware stores may be overlooked. Even commercial birds of a feather should flock together, I guess, if there's enough seeds and worms to go around. Lower main!

"It seems to me, though," said the Elevator Man, "there's another principle you could apply. It might be a good idea to pick out, not businesses that are the same, but businesses that go together. Then you'd get a sort of set-up where the dentist's office would be right handy to the store that sells fudge. Crutch and liniment emporiums might do a good trade close to a banana stand that strewed its peeling around. You might sell quite a lot of adhesive plaster next door to a careless barber. Then it seems to me there'd be a good market for beef-steaks near a gymnasium. Hatters should do well on a windy corner; an ear and throat specialist might well locate near a ball park, and hospitals and undertakers should set up along any good straight stretch of highway. Going down!

"It's what you might call," said the Elevator Man, "the cause and effect system of merchandising, where one thing leads naturally to another. It's like the fella in the story who was selling some hair restorer. 'Is this stuff really any good?' asked the customer. 'Good?' says the clerk. 'I'll let you in on a secret. We let it go at cost because it brings us in so much comb and brush business!'"

ACHESON WARNS NO LETDOWN POSSIBLE

Allies Must Make More Sacrifices To Build Shield Against Communists

DETROIT (AP)—The United States and its Allies must put forth "several years of very hard effort" to build a shield against 9,000,000 Communists under arms, State Secretary Dean Acheson declared last night.

"Whether or not an armistice results from the talks in Korea," he said, "the fundamental job ahead of us will not change."

Warning against a letdown in defense efforts, Acheson said: "If we shrink the hard course, the alternatives are war or surrender."

"The prospect may be hard and long," he said. "It may mean more sacrifices for us, more shortages, higher taxes. But there is no easier way through."

Fencing in of sections of Bowker Creek running through city-owned property, will be recommended to City Council Tuesday, the public works committee agreed yesterday.

He shared the flag-bedecked rostrum with the ambassadors of Canada, Britain and France.

CANADIAN SPEAKS

Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong made a plea for early action by the U.S. Congress on the proposed development of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The main theme of Wrong's address was the long period of friendly relations between the U.S. and Canada.

Sir Oliver Franks, the British ambassador, declared: "Our four countries have a great mission in the world today." He added: "We believe we shall win through."

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet also underscored unity. He said France will form this year the 10 divisions promised for the North Atlantic defense forces despite the burden of the Indo-China fighting.

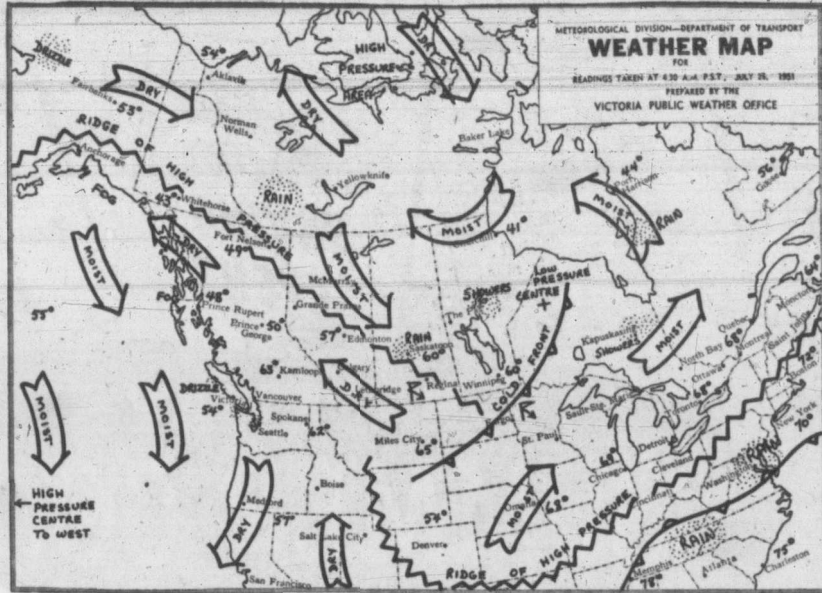

Acheson and Bonnet both struck a note of optimism in describing progress toward setting up a single European army to combat Communism.

The diplomats referred to a preliminary agreement reached in Paris Monday to merge land, sea and air power of five European countries into a 2,000,000-man internationalized force.

"The North Atlantic Treaty idea of pooling military strength is a revolutionary peacetime accomplishment," Acheson said.

Nobody Takes Blame Over Lack Of Grain

MONTREAL (CP) — It's anybody's guess who is to blame but seven ocean-going vessels are losing $1,000 a day each in port because there is no western grain here for them to carry overseas.

There were almost as many explanations for the dearth at parties concerned in grain export. Shippers here said the railways and Great Lakes ships weren't providing enough space for export grain. The carriers denied it. Lakehead grain men, with elevators bulging, said it was a shortage of canal boats.

One spokesman here said neither the railways nor the Great Lakes ships are providing enough transportation means for shipment here. He said this applies to both the ship-rail routes and the all-water routes.

However, a railway spokesman said there isn't any shortage of cars to move grain, or any other commodity. Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways were about 4,000,000 bushels each ahead of last year in deliveries to Montreal elevators.

Bishop Calls For Truce In Petain Controversy

ILE D'YEU, France (CP) — Bishop Antoine Cazaux, in a funeral oration over the bier of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, today called for a truce in the still-raging controversy over the First World War hero's role during the Second World War.

More than 7,000 persons gathered in front of the Church of Notre Dame du Port to watch the funeral of the old soldier, who died in exile on this bleak island at the age of 95.

Bishop Cazaux, who served under Petain in the First World War, said history eventually will pass judgment on the marshal. But he added: "I don't think that we have the right to suspect the intentions and the sincerity of the man who, at the most tragic moment of national history, gave himself with such simplicity to France."

Long before the rites started, people crowded into the square to witness the funeral of the man whose heroic stand at Verdun in leadership of the Vichy government the First World War had won him a hero's acclaim, and whose men under the Nazi occupation in the second led to his sentence to life imprisonment on this island for treason.

Petain's body will be buried near the graves of 12 Canadian airmen shot down during the Second World War. Also nearby are the graves of several British commandos.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

True bravery, it should be clear, is conquering, not lack of fear.

Peter Rabbit was anxious. He was worried. It seemed to him that Little Mrs. Peter had suddenly gone crazy. At least it seemed so to Peter. She who seldom went more than a few feet outside the dear Old Briar-patch, was now nearly half-way across the Green Meadows. The strange part of it all was that it looked as if she was going to meet Flip the Terrier.

Now Flip, who lives at Farmer Brown's house, delights in chasing and trying to catch the smaller people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. Flip takes particular pleasure in trying to catch Peter, Mrs. Peter, or any other rabbit he can find outside a bramble tangle.

Now Peter knows all about Flip and how fast he can run. Now, watching Mrs. Peter, he was more worried than ever he had been when he himself was running for his life.

"She's crazy," muttered Peter. He stood up on his hind feet the better to see. "If she goes much farther she won't be able to get back here."

It really did look as if Mrs. Peter was doing something that was crazy. As yet the little dog had not seen her, but he would in a moment. Suddenly Flip jumped high and his voice was a yelp as started straight for Mrs. Peter. Away went little Mrs. Peter, and away went Flip after her.

What was the matter with little Mrs. Peter? She wasn't running toward the dear Old Briar-patch. She was running toward the Old Pasture, which was nearly twice as far away.

It certainly did look as if Mrs. Peter was doing a crazy thing. For a short distance she could run as fast as Flip the Terrier, perhaps faster. Then she would have to depend on dodging. Dodging has saved her lives many times.

In a few minutes Flip began to gain. Now wouldn't you have thought, as Peter did, that she would have headed straight for the nearest safe place? But Mrs. Peter was still heading for the Old Pasture, even though it was so much farther away than the dear Old Briar-patch.

"She's crazy," muttered Peter. "She certainly is."

"Crazy!" muttered Peter. "I ought to go help her, but that would mean two in trouble instead of one." The truth is, Peter was afraid.

May Give U.S. Concessions To Hunt Oil

HAIFA, Israel (AP)—The Israeli government was reported by official sources Tuesday to be preparing a new law which would permit it to give concessions to American companies to carry out oil explorations. The legislation would nullify concessions given to British prospectors by the former British-mandate government.

A high government source also said that the Haifa refinery—largely owned by the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company—will soon increase production to full capacity.

The refinery has been operating at less than one-third capacity for some time. The Anglo-Iranian's main operations—in Iran—are now bogged down by a bitter oil nationalization dispute.

The Iraq petroleum line to Haifa now is closed and the main problem centres around shipping crude oil to Israel through the Suez Canal. Israel has complained to the United Nations Security Council that Egypt has blocked oil shipments through the canal.

Child Welfare Lecture Topic

Under the sponsorship of the Victoria Nursery School Association, Dr. Virginia Baillard, supervisor of counselling and psychological research in the Long Beach, Calif., city schools, gave an address on "The Pre-School Child," in the auditorium of the Victoria summer school.

"There is nothing more interesting than a child," Dr. Baillard remarked. "The child is reaching for something he cannot reach. At this early period his personality is quite pliable. No two children are alike; they develop differently in so many different ways. Too much pressure is not good."

She remarked that the nursery school helps to develop the child socially and mentally.

Dr. Baillard was introduced by Miss Christine MacNab, president of the Victoria Nursery School Association, and a vote of thanks and appreciation was extended by Miss Patricia Attwood, superintendent of the Greater Victoria Nursery School.

Members of pre-school groups, parents and teachers attended the lecture.

Esquimalt Will Study Program Of Public Works

Esquimalt's public works committee will make a study to determine the merits of a suggestion that the municipality borrow $400,000 to carry out an extensive program of road, sidewalk and drainage work.

It was generally agreed that a loan, if agreed to by ratepayers, should be spread over a 15-year period.

On the subject of public work, council tabled a committee proposal for widening of the intersection at Admirals Road and Bewdley Avenue. The project would involve acquisition by the municipality of a portion of land owned by Mrs. J. A. Wilson, 1240 Bewdley, and J. C. Bark, 432 Admirals.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

The bidding of the opponents sometimes tells you to open a trump. For example, dummy may deny one suit bid by his partner and raise another suit with enthusiasm. That sort of bidding usually indicates ability to ruff the denied suit, in which case the defenders have to lead trumps at every opportunity in order to get their tricks.

In today's hand the bidding sounded just like that to West. As it turned out, however, he should have trusted his eyes as well as his ears.

When West opened the ace of hearts, a very reasonable opening lead because of dummy's bidding, he had the chance to see that dummy was not short in spades. Staring West in the face were three small spades.

In spite of this West failed to change his plan. He continued with a second trump, whereupon declarer, as bridge jargon so elegantly puts it, wrapped four hearts around West's neck. South won the second round of trumps in his hand, cashed his clubs and the ace of diamonds, and crossed to the king of diamonds to discard a spade on the ace of clubs. He completed the stripping process by ruffing dummy's last diamond. Now he could lead a trump to dummy and return a spade.

When east played low, South put up the queen, and West found himself in the soup. He had to win and had to return spades. No matter what he did, he could win only two spade tricks, and South was bound to make his contract. West should have set the contract before South could win a trick. South had bid spades, and West could see eight spades in his own hand and the dummy. Obviously, East was short and could ruff the third round. West should have laid down the ace and king of spades as soon as he saw dummy. Then a spade ruff would have set the contract.

Due For A Move

Lumber stacked on a storage lot at Ogden Point is due for a move in the near future. The move is necessitated, officials report, because of increased activity expected on dock owing to large export orders received recently.

Heavier Lumber Orders Boost Ogden Pt. Activity

Increased activity at Ogden Point because of above normal export orders may be expected during the next 30 to 60 days, Stan Moore of Moore-Whittington Lumber Co., disclosed here today. Export volume for the past 30 to 45 days, he explained, has been less than normal, owing to reluctance of ships to call here for a less than full cargo load. Over the week-end the Alaska Spruce loaded about a half million feet of lumber and left for the east coast of the U.S. Reports from the U.S. indicate some improvement in Atlantic coast buying and a more encouraging outlook than prevailed a few weeks ago, it was asserted. Lumber on the storage lot at the moment was estimated to be about 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 feet—approximately two full cargoes.

PLANS TO SELL HORSEMEAT HERE

Opening of a store for sale of horsemeat in Victoria in early August loomed Tuesday as application for a city license is expected shortly. According to reports, a Victoria man, who wishes to remain anonymous, plans to have his store almost completely set up before applying for a license. It is believed he has located a site on Douglas Street.

Civil Defense Training Course Starts Aug. 6

First course for the training of sub-instructors to be held in the province will be given at the Public Market from August 6 to 24, Civil Defence Co-ordinator Leonard Hatcher, announced Tuesday. Twenty to thirty persons from various key industries in the city will take the course which will enable them to train other leaders, Mr. Hatcher said. Education Minister W. T. Straith will open the school with Mayor Percy George and members of the regional civil defense control board on hand. Classes will be held from 9 to 5 daily.

Abbott Eases Credit Regulations

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott announced last night a series of changes in consumer credit regulations, effective Aug. 1.

None of the changes affect minimum down payments or the maximum period of credit.

However, trade-ins will be allowed to form part of the minimum down payment on all types of goods after Aug. 1. If the cash price of the goods being purchased is not marked up. Up to now, trade-ins have been allowed only for motor vehicles.

One change affecting goods previously exempted from the regulations is in the case of a motor vehicle which has been the personal property of the seller for six months. The sale of such a motor vehicle now will be exempt only if it is a private deal between the seller and buyers with no third party entering for the purpose of financing the transaction.

The changes also will bring contracts for rental of goods under control for the first time.

The announcement said: "It is provided that under such a contract with a term of more than six months or under a renewal contract which would result in the hirer having possession of the goods for more than six months, the hirer would make a deposit and monthly payments as if he were purchasing the goods with the provision that when the contract is terminated and the goods returned then the deposit may be returned as well as part of the monthly payments."

Where the hirer has already paid the equivalent of the cash price of the goods in rent, there need be no change in the rental terms.

On contracts which are affected and where the rental payments required by the regulations are higher than normal, the rental payments may be reduced once the equivalent of the cash price has been paid.

The new regulations also will control for the first time contracts of work and labor where consumer goods are supplied under the contracts.

Indians Keep Abreast Of Caps In W.I.L. Lead

The Western International League issue is still in doubt.

The Spokane Indians broke out in a late rash of extra-base hits last night to defeat the Tri-City Braves 12-10 and retain their half of first place, shared with Vancouver Caplanos who beat Victoria.

The Indians picked up five doubles, two triples and a pair of homers. Buddy Patterson drove in five of Tri-City's runs. Although suffering from a streak of wildness, Salem's Bill Bevens was good enough to beat Yakima Bears 4-1 for his 15th win of the season. The big ex-Yankee gave up nine hits and eight walks.

Saanichton Girls Claim Every Title

The Saanichton midget girls' softball team are claiming league, district, island and provincial titles today following an 18-14 win over Brentwood last night.

Playing the third game of a best-of-three series in the Colwood and District Softball League, the Saanichton girls found they were the only midget girls' team operating in the province. Thus the multi-title claim.

Brentwood won the first game of the series 26-25 but Saanichton won the second 47-7.

The team's prize for the best hitter was awarded to Jo Ann Gait. Linda Brock was runner-up.

The Royal Ottawa golf course, at Hull, Que., will be the mecca of the nation's top amateur "dividgers" August 27 to September 1, when the 1951 R.C.G.A. Canadian amateur golf tournament is held.

Interprovincial matches (Williford Cup play) will take place on the same course two days before the start of the big championship event, and the Canadian junior championship will be decided the same week on 36 holes of medal play for the Buckingham Cup.

New feature of the year's golfing climax will be the informal team matches to be inaugurated between picked squads from Canada and the U.S.

This year's initial game will be played at Saucon Valley Country Club, Bethlehem, Pa., with the 1951 Walker Cup team representing the U.S.G.A. A selection committee has been set up by the Royal Canadian Golf Association to choose Canada's team. It will be chosen from the provincial Williford Cup teams.

Surprise sidelight of the announcement was the revelation that Sandy Somerville will captain the Canadian team and act as alternate.

Foul Bay Wins Junior Lacrosse

In junior lacrosse at the arena last night, Foul Bay nipped Jokers 6-1 behind the two-goal performances of Buzz Hudson and Norm Kowalyk.

Monday's games in the pee-wee league saw Saanich dump Oak Bay 8-4 and Fairfield beat Fernwood 8-2. Fairfield's George Brice led all the scorers with five goals. In a bantam game, Oak Bay knocked Saanich 8-6.

Minor lacrosse schedule for Saturday follows: 9 a.m.—Ree Wee: Oak Bay vs. Fairfield. 9:45 a.m.—Pee Wee: Saanich vs. Fernwood. 10:30 a.m.—Bantam: Saanich vs. Fernwood. 11:30 a.m.—Bantam: Oak Bay vs. Fairfield.

B.C. playdowns, moving toward the national event, will get underway August 4, when the first 36 holes of the 72-hole Williford team test will be played in Victoria. The following day a second 36 holes will be played at Vancouver.

Team members to represent this province will be named immediately on completion of the 72 holes, but Bill Mawhinney, Walt McElroy and Victorians Bob Fleming are generally agreed to be certain for three of the four places.

Other Victorians competing for the last berth to be filled will be Bob Morrison, George Bigelow, Gordon Verley, Bill McCall and Vic Painter.

Gorge Vale Winners

The silver division honors in the medal round played at Gorge Vale Golf Club Sunday was won by Mrs. F. Gooch. She carded a 73.

Miss G. Wilbur won the bronze division with the same net score.

Cap Gardeners Dig A's Grave

Boot 12-Inning Grind 4-3; Pries Takes Army Medical

If Vancouver Caplanos win the W.I.L. pennant this season they can cut the winner's cake into three pieces. Victoria Athletics' manager Bob Sturgeon will tell you that the trio of Vancouver outfielders, Charlie Mead, Dick Sino-vic and Bob McGuire deserve every last crumb.

Last night it was the consistently sterling and often unbelievable defensive work of the Cap gardeners that was responsible for Caplanos' 12-inning 4-3 victory over the Athletics.

Every time the Athletics started a rally, one of the outfielders would squelch it with a piece of defensive wizardry.

Caplanos got their winning run in the bottom of the 12th when Chuck Abernathy lined a double off the offerings of John Tierney and came in on Ray Tran's single.

MEAD ROBBED

The A's had been robbed of a run in the top of the 12th when with two out and a runner on third, new arrival Ben Jaffey lined out what appeared to be a cinch triple to right field. Charlie Mead tore back against the fence and made a miraculous stab of the tremendous clout to end the inning and the A's chances.

Previously Mead had robbed Hal Jackson of a sure hit in the sixth. McGuire used his slingshot arm to full advantage, twice throwing Bob Sturgeon out on the basepaths. One of the throws came after McGuire had hauled down Bill Dunn's long fly. He threw a strike to third base to double off Sturgeon who had tried to move up after the catch.

Sino-vic, as well as picking up three of the Caps' nine hits made a tumbling, boot-top catch of Jaffey's humpbacked liner in the first extra inning.

PITCHERS' BATTLE

Both pitchers, Tierney for the A's and George Nicholas for the Caps, went all the way and either hurler could have come out on top.

NEW HOCKEY LEAGUE UNLIKELY

Will Year's Strangest Sport Story Die A'Borning?

By LANCE WHITTAKER

One of the strangest local sports stories of the year is about to have an unhappy ending; unhappy, that is, for anyone sanguine enough to believe that Victoria was destined to have a hockey team in the Allan Cup playdowns next year.

The story originated with a meeting held here two weeks ago, when C.A.H.A. moguls sat in with capital city hockey men and managers from Nanaimo and the mainland.

It attained substance over the weekend when a Vancouver reprint appeared on these pages intimating that a new four-team, intercity hockey league was in the making. It would incorporate last year's Nanaimo squad, the Kerrisdale Monarchs and teams from Vancouver and Victoria, presumably the cream of the Commercial League crop in those two cities.

SENIOR AMATEUR

The story got a two-column headline yesterday when the league graduated to the "senior amateur" category and Commercial League vice-president Don Hucklin offered to take on the project himself if his organization felt squeamish.

To date, few concrete details have been available. Don Hucklin has refused to speculate on where the players might be found, or how the team could be financed. It is a little early for such considerations, although Don agreed that a great deal of thought had been given to them.

Arena commission chairman Carl Pendray had a ready comment, however, when he was asked if the commission had any obligation, written, verbal or otherwise to see that Lester Patrick and his Cougars were protected in their agreement for the ice surface next winter.

NO EQUIVOCATION

The obligation, Mr. Pendray feels, is definitely there.

"I wouldn't think of agreeing to another intercity hockey team being allowed to operate in the arena this winter," he told the Times. "and although I speak as an individual I am sure that I would have the support of every member of the commission in that."

That statement, in itself, should cool the ardor of promoters of the new hockey league; but if it doesn't, consider these points, all of them raised by interested people:

HIGHER PRICES

1. For all practical purposes senior "amateur" hockey no longer exists. Members of teams bearing that label are paid, and means big budgets and much higher admission prices than the four-bit feast hockey fans enjoyed on Monday nights last winter.

2. An intercity league means travelling expense. Add that to the above—and jack up the price of a reserved seat another quarter.

HOW ABOUT JUNIORS

4. Ninety hockey players are going to be out of a job if the Commercial League folds. When it is understood that the arena executive has a moral as well as financial obligation to the city, that adds up to grief for the new plan. In other words, the players as well as the fans get recreation and enjoyment out of hockey and 90 Commercial League players are ratepayers too.

5. In the same vein, how will minor hockey players, managers, coaches, fans and parents feel about having one senior "amateur" team for their boys to shoot at, as against six commercial squads?

But the clinching and concluding argument must be the word of Carl Pendray. "As long as Lester Patrick meets us half way in our terms for the rent of the arena—and he has—then I think we have a moral obligation to see that he gets an even break."

Mr. Pendray was speaking for himself, but it is hard to see how any member of the arena commission could take any other stand.

That doesn't leave a new intercity hockey team anywhere to play in Victoria.

Rocks Aim At Clincher

Nanaimo Native Sons could be the victims of Victoria Shamrocks' championship hunger at the Memorial Arena tonight when the two teams clash in what promises to be a top-notch game.

The Rocks are now four points out in front of the New Westminster Commandos with a game in hand. A victory for the locals tonight followed by a repeat performance at Nanaimo Saturday night would put the Shamrocks almost out of sight of the other teams in the league race.

The Vancouver Combines brought themselves two points closer to striking distance of the second place Commandos last night by whipping the North Shore Indians 14-8 at Kerrisdale Arena.

With Combine coach Johnny Cavallin banished on a two-game suspension, John Dale took over the reins and led his mates to an early 7-3 lead.

Big guns in Combines' victory were Harry and Elmer Buchanan. The former had two goals and three assists, while Elmer scored three times.

Like the injury-riddled Shamrocks, who are missing Norm Baker and Tommy Druce, the Combines were missing Jim Anderson, their high-scoring forward.

Anderson, however, was injured on the golf course. Playing in Combines' tournament, he suffered multiple injuries to his right foot and now has it in a cast. Officials fear he will be out the remainder of the season.

Quinton Mar's Four-Master Breaks Up 11-All Cabbies-Students Game

Quinton Mar of Chinese Students, broke up a wild scoring Senior A Men's softball game last night at Central Park, when he homered into the trees in left field in the bottom of the ninth, to break an 11-11 tie.

The heart-breaker dropped Bluebird Cabs further into the cellar with their 11th straight loss.

Students came from away back to pick up the two points for the win when they sent 12 batters to the plate in the last of the eighth and scored nine runs on six hits to take the lead in the game for the first time at 11 to 8.

Cabbies came back in their half of the ninth. Four straight walks and a single by Charlie Sansbury brought in three runs to tie the game.

Prior to the wild final two innings the Bluebird Cabs were

54 YEARS AND A DAY

Marylebone Match To Find Scorer Land Ready

By DENNY BOYD

Did you know that a local cricket player, Les Gibbons, once hit eight boundary sixes for 48 runs in one over of eight pitched balls, a feat that compares in baseball with eight home runs in eight times at bat?

Did you know that Bill Hendy, a Vancouver player, hit two balls completely over the trees and out of Macdonald Park?

Would you believe that a team in England was once dismissed for the amazingly low total of seven runs?

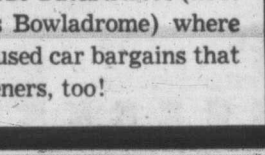

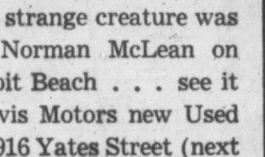

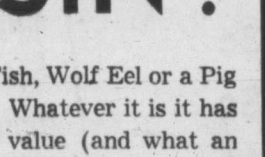

These facts and countless others can be found in a bulging scrapbook that is the record of 54 years of cricket in England and Canada.

The book, a treasury of cricket anecdotes, is the property of W. I. (Bill) Land, who is as much a part of local cricket as the oval at Beacon Hill Park.

"SOLEMN CONVICTION" To anyone who has followed cricket in Victoria the slight, white-haired man sitting at the officials' table with a score-sheet in front of him is a familiar sight. His equipment consists of a pocket adding machine, a case containing six pencils of varying hardnesses and a solemn conviction that cricket is the greatest game in the world.

Bill made his start in the cricket world 54 years ago, scoring his first game in Birmingham, England, in 1897. His own playing career had been cut short because of defective eyesight after four years of grammar school competition. He claims that he was no Don Bradman with the bat but that he could always hold

Lobs And Volleys

Sheila Kingham returned to Victoria this week all aglow after participating in the Pacific northwest net tourney all last week at the swanky Seattle Tennis Club.

Sheila and her partner, Ann Barclay, of Vancouver, found the slick hard courts at Seattle to their liking and copped the girls' doubles title. They whipped Carol Draynoid and Loy Ann McGee, of Tacoma, 6-2, 2-6, 6-0, in the finals.

Sheila had the bad luck of meeting top-ranking Patsy Heard, of Portland, in the first round of the singles play and copped only three games. Patsy won the singles crown.

The Victoria girl, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. J. R. Kingham, 3485 Upper Terrace, is already holder of the below 15 girls' singles crown for Vancouver Island.

Now she's looking forward to copping more laurels when the British Columbia championships start here July 30.

Practically the entire Kingham family is entered in events in the British Columbia play. Sheila's brother, Ian, is in the junior singles and her father is in the veteran's singles.

Victoria Lawn club had a work party Monday night . . . and it ended in near disaster for one of the volunteers. A bucket of green paint tipped over him just as he was winding up his work. Lucky there was turpentine about!

Angled Shots—Greenkeepers at the Vic Lawn club have worked a miracle in restoring the grass courts for the British Columbia play. Plenty of fertilizer and water did the trick, they report.

In his quiet voice, Bill will tell you that the game is not as good as it was 25 years ago and if anyone has the right to judge the calibre of the game, it is Bill. "It was nothing for a team to go and get 150 or 200 runs in first bats in the old days," he says.

Right now Bill is sharpening up his pencils and oiling his adding machine in preparation for the arrival of the famous Marylebone team which plays the Vancouver Island All-Stars August 26.

Farm Unions Consider Next Move After Meeting Federal Ministers

REGINA (CP) — The three prairie farm unions today considered their next move in a campaign to get "justice for the Western farmer."

Tuesday they placed their demands before three federal cabinet ministers and Western Liberal and opposition members of Parliament.

The Liberal spokesman, Agriculture Minister James G. Gardiner, parried the demands for 1½ hours. Later, the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. and Social Credit opposition members of Parliament voiced almost unqualified support for the farm union requests.

Discussions, with talk of a farm strike forming an ominous backdrop, revolved around a brief submitted jointly by the union leaders after it had been endorsed by some 1,200 farm union delegates.

Replying to the brief's recommendation for a parliamentary farm bloc similar to that in the U.S. Congress, Mr. Gardiner suggested it might not be manageable because of the Canadian parliamentary form of government which makes it necessary for the government to have a Commons majority at all times.

He said the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, in a sense, might be said to include a farm bloc at Ottawa.

DODGES ISSUES.
Mr. Gardiner parried other union statements on freight rates, farm debt, wheat prices and Trade Minister Howe's attitude towards farmers.

The contentious brief also requested a parity price for wheat sold on the domestic market, price controls and rollbacks, revision of the international wheat agreement ceiling price, floor prices for farm products, arbitration of government-farmer differences over the final payment on the five-year wheat pool and re-

Opposition speakers criticized the government for wheat pricing and marketing policies.

Victor Quelch (S.C. - Acadia) termed handling of the five-year pool a "flagrant breach of faith."

He condemned the international wheat agreement as a "crackpot scheme."

J. A. Ross (P.C. - Souris) said the government had turned wheat marketing into a political football and inflation, due to government policies, had worsened the farmers' position.

The separate meetings with government and opposition members of Parliament ended the two-day joint rally of the farm unions, representing a minority of Western agriculture.

Montana Interests Oppose Importing Of Alberta Fuel

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Coal operators and labor groups have joined forces to oppose the Montana Power Company's plan to import gas from Canada.

They said the company plans to import "in excess of 400,000,000 cubic feet" of natural gas from Alberta, and that this would cause "serious and permanent disruption of the economy" of Montana and her sister states.

But the power company said the gas would be used at Anaconda Copper Mining Company mines and smelters, which "have been using natural gas since 1931 or earlier. Thus there will be no change in fuel operations at any of those sites."

About 250 men attended a closed session here Tuesday and formed the western states fuel policy council.

Canadian Survives For Three Days At Sea On Watermelon

TAMPICO, Mexico (AP) — A lone sailor took water and fuel aboard his small craft here today after having quenched his thirst for three days at sea with a watermelon.

R. Martin De Beaumont told port authorities he left Corpus Christi, Tex., June 25 on his way to Campeche in Southern Mexico. Two weeks out, his $800 sailboat Storm Bird was becalmed for two days in the Gulf of Mexico, he said, and its outboard motor ran out of fuel.

He rationed his water supply, but it also ran out. He then subsisted on a watermelon. Meanwhile, a storm blew up and he had to lash himself to mast to prevent being washed overboard.

Finally, Beaumont said, he neared the Mexican coast and got some gasoline from fishing boats, although they had no water for him. His boat chugged into Tampico harbor Monday night.

Beaumont said he planned to leave within a week for Campeche, there to escape "American snobbishness, commune with God and nature, and write a book."

The Limpopo River in South Africa is 1,000 miles long but is unnavigable for vessels of more than 200 tons because of sand bars that obstruct its mouth.

By ART STOTT

When we were kids on the beach, we'd spend part of each summer vacation trying to make a dugout canoe. Somehow or other, we never seemed to get much encouragement at home. The folks didn't cotton on to the idea of a barefoot youngster swinging an axe into a hunk of cedar. Too many hunks of cedar had nails in them that would take the edge off any axe.

Still, when the hot days of July and August rolled around, we'd prowl the shoreline looking for a good log and we'd dig up an axe that never was sharp enough to do the job we wanted to do with it. We didn't exactly carve a prow on the log. We just banged away and broke off enough chips to give the end a rough point.

SOMETIMES THAT'S as far as we'd get. There'd be a fire burning on High Rock and we'd down tools to go for a swim. At other times we'd fashion a bow and start hacking away at the log to hollow it out. That was labor.

Occasionally, probably one in 20 of the dugout makers would manage to scoop out a hollow in his log, but he'd drive his axe through, the bow of the craft he was making before it was properly shaped. Then he'd join the guys at High Rock, too. We didn't seem to have the patience an Indian canoe maker needs. Wilson Duff, tells me that's a job for an expert who should be learned in the supernatural rites of his particular craft. A specialist in the old days might make a utility dugout in the course of a month, shaping the outside first and then scooping out the interior with a stone adze or a stone chisel and hammer.

AFTER THE vessel had been given its outside contour, the craftsman would bore holes in the bottom and sides while the timber was still solid. Into the holes he'd put plugs of a length equal to the thickness he planned to make the boat. Working on the inside, he would chisel or adze away until he reached the plugs. It was one way of determining thickness without using calipers.

The Indians made several types of dugouts. The big war canoes, adapted later to more slender racing shells, were the cream of the lot. Most of them were flat-bottomed, but the Haidas favored a rounded design for use in the open seas. When the shell had been carved from the big red cedar, the mystical side of canoe-making started. The specialist would call on the appropriate spirits, fill his craft with water, drop hot rocks into it, cover the top and let the steam soften the wood.

THEN CAME THE spreading. He'd cut saplings as long as he wanted his canoe wide. These he'd put into the steamed shell, bowing them so they'd push the sides of the craft to the beam he desired as they straightened out. When they'd done the trick, the expert would fix in his thwarts to hold the canoe in shape.

That was a secret business. Only the man with the inside track on the right spirits could do it, and he did it with the help of his wife alone. No strangers could pry on his mysteries.

You can figure the process, a trade secret if you like. You can read a little mysticism into it, if you prefer. Or you can dismiss it as mere mumbo-jumbo. But those specialists made good canoes—better, the coast fur-traders used to claim, than the birch or spruce bark vessels of the river Indians.

THERE ARE ONLY a few of the old canoe-building craftsmen left. You see their work at the Gorge on May 24. The present day variant will more frequently make only the concession of shape to the dugout and will build his craft of planking, not carve it from a solid timber.

It's a little sad that the old art is dying. Probably it, too, should be retained like other Indian handicrafts of continuing popularity. Our youngsters should be given the chance to see that type of work. They might learn a little patience from it, and they might have a higher appreciation for Indian skills.

Maybe Paddy Heaton had something like that in the back of his mind when he followed up the suggestion of an Indian show during the coming royal visit with the proposal the event be held in one of our parks.

"Let all the kiddies see the show," Paddy urged. "Kiddies could go down in classes and they really should be given first chance."

Campbell River Residents Bitter Over Log Pile-Up At Fishing Grounds

Bitterness over conditions of Lower Campbell Lake resulting from the raising of the water level by the B.C. Power Commission for its John Hart plant reached a peak today. Residents of the Campbell River area, and operators of the Forbes Landing Hotel in particular, condemned the commission for a pile-up of logs and forest debris which is choking the southern end of the famous fishing ground.

Members of the Forbes family, which run the only tourist resort on the lake—at Forbes Landing—said in a telephone interview the jamming of the lake by logs, branches and "just plain junk" from power commission clearing operations was "worse than ever."

Tree-Cutting Along Lake

The commission has been cutting brush and trees on the lake shore to the new level of the water.

There was some trouble from the floating debris last year and complaints were registered with the commission.

Since July 1 this year it is claimed the southern end of the lake has been so choked with debris few boats have been able to put out from Forbes Landing.

Mrs. James Forbes, owner of the resort, fears the jamming of the lake will drive tourists away "for good."

"We've had several leave in disgust already," she said.

The hotel owner said power commission crews had been trying to keep a channel open from her landing to the park of the lake not choked with the debris, but were having little success.

"Today the jam reaches out into the lake as far as the eye can see and there is no channel," she said. "They tell us there won't be a channel either for at least four or five days."

Meanwhile, Forrest L. Shaw, one of the three commissioners of the power commission, said here everything possible was being done to "rectify the condition."

BLAMES WEATHER

He blamed the weather for the jam, claiming winds this year at Campbell Lake "are not prevailing as they have in the past."

Said Mr. Shaw: "I'm afraid nature has gone against us."

The commissioner said there were two crews of men with two boats and a hoist barge working on clearing the debris. He did not know how many men comprised the crews or what progress was being made.

"We're doing everything we can, though," he commented.

Sam Weston, chief commissioner, was out of town until August 6 and could not be contacted for comment.

Campbell River observers claimed the commission had only 24 men working on the jam and "at least three or four hundred good loggers were needed."

They said the commission was using two small tugs, one of which was breaking down continually, and the hoist barge on the lake was not at work.

Yacht Club Plans Picnic

Members of Royal Victoria Yacht Club and their guests will attend a picnic Sunday at Smugglers Cove, Chatham Island, from 1 to 8 p.m.

There will be treasure hunts for senior and junior members and the children will have a peanut hunt. All will attend a wiener roast at 5 and flag officers will receive guests ashore at 6.30.

Next race meet will be the Navy Yacht Club's second annual regatta August 3, 4 and 5, with races in Esquimalt Harbor for auxiliary cruisers, stars, lightnings and snipes.

A dance will be held Saturday night, August 4, at the H.M.C.S. Naden wardroom and buffet luncheon will be served at the wardroom Sunday at 1.30.

Plans are well in hand for the Cowichan Bay regatta September 1 and 2, last inter-club meet of the season, when Maple Bay Yacht Club will be host club.

There will be races for all classes, starting at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Ontario Back At Esquimalt After Trip

Canada's biggest west coast naval vessel, the cruiser Ontario, berthed at H.M.C.S. Naden this morning after a cruise to Prince Rupert with Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace aboard.

As the ship entered the naval harbor a 15-gun salute was fired from the shore as a salute to Mr. Wallace from Rear Admiral Wallace B. Creery.

After the ship had tied up and Mr. Wallace disembarked, another 15-gun salute was fired by the Ontario's guns. Looking very fit after his trip, Mr. Wallace said he had enjoyed the voyage "very much."

WELCOME SPENCER GIFT

City Aldermen Prepare To Discuss Art Project

Leading educational authorities and prominent citizens in every walk of life today greeted the offer of the old Spencer home for a civic art gallery as "a wonderful thing for Victoria."

Aldermen welcomed the gift as a generous gesture which will fix a long-felt need in the city.

Finance committee of City Council will discuss the offer on Thursday and Acting Mayor Frank G. Mulliner felt it would be accepted once ways and means of operation and administration of a gallery were ironed out.

While all the council praised the gift and the spirit behind it, many aldermen suggested the gift should be conveyed to the Arts Centre itself rather than the city. They contended people would be more inclined to leave requests to the centre than to a city corporation.

CIVIC RESPONSIBILITY

Others do not agree. They feel an art gallery is a civic responsibility just as a public library and any other cultural institution. They feel the city should bear the expenditure involved.

While he would not give his opinion on the offer before finance committee meets, Ald. Waldo Skillings indicated all municipalities would have to share any financial responsibility. He has long opposed Victoria making capital investment for institutions which other municipalities then use free of charge.

"The city should accept the responsibility of a civic art gallery," said J. F. K. English, municipal inspector of schools, "providing the maintenance is within reason."

"They are lucky to get such a building at no cost to themselves. If they do not take it, the city will drift for years without an ultimate solution to the problem."

ENDORSES IDEA

Miss Margaret Clay, city librarian, was enthusiastic at the idea of a civic art gallery.

"It has been needed for a long time. The city taking it over as its responsibility is definitely a step in the right direction. Other cities participate in such civic art centres."

Here are some aldermanic comments:

Ald. Percy Scurrell: "It is a most generous offer which will add to the cultural life of the city."

Ald. Margaret Christie: "I think it is a wonderful gift. We have wanted and needed an art gallery for years."

Ald. Arthur Dowell: "It is a very generous offer, but I would have to study the terms before saying anything further."

Ald. William Pinfold, member of finance committee, also lauded the gift.

Times Babies Highlight Of All-Sooke Day

Tots like this typical baby contest entrant were in limelight at 15th annual All-Sooke Day today, as crowds which thronged Sooke River flats focused considerable attention on tent which was scene of Victoria Daily Times contest for best rural baby under 18 months of age.

10,000 Tastes In Barbecued Beef, Salmon Satisfied At All-Sooke Day

By DON INGHAM

SOOKE—The tantalizing smell of barbecued beef and salmon hung over the Sooke River flats here this afternoon as an estimated crowd of 10,000 watched the games and contests of the 15th All-Sooke Day get under way.

All afternoon cars from Greater Victoria and Up-Island points converged on the famous camping grounds on the bend of the Sooke River, scene of the celebrated outdoor event.

Fires were lit in the barbecue pits Tuesday night, and 50-pound roasts of beef were added at intervals to suit all tastes.

A clam chowder containing 50 pounds of pork, a sack of potatoes, mountains of carrots and onions, and countless all-important claims was gobbled up in short order.

Burly loggers were set to put on a spectacular show. There were tree-climbing contests for high riggers, bucking with axe and saw, and log-burling on the river.

Added attraction was to be a log-rolling exhibition by the Ellison father and daughter team of Aberdeen, Wash.

More than 50 youngsters entered the pie-eating contest, and children from all over South Vancouver Island entered in the races. All contests were unrestricted except the Victoria Daily Times baby show, where entries were limited to infants of 18 months and younger from the rural districts.

The midway was jammed by 1 p.m. Bingo was popular, and one lady set out to beat a record made last year, when a Sooke resident played bingo for five hours without stopping.

Everyone had a chance to take part in a "gold rush," where contestants staked their claims on the river bank, and tried to come close to the "mother lode."

Prize-giving will be at 6 p.m., and the day will conclude with a gala dance at Sooke Community Hall tonight.

Premier Byron Johnson officially opened the annual celebration at 12.30, following introduction by Richard Caines, president 100,000 Get 'Pay Up' Nudge From Tax Dept.

July and August are the months taxpayers can expect to receive notices from the income tax branch here warning them to pay up or face garnished wages or court action, it was announced today.

Over 100,000 delinquent taxpayers across the country will receive these notices in the next few weeks.

Most have already paid some 90 per cent or more of their 1950 taxes through payroll deductions. It is the remaining unpaid balance the tax collectors are after.

Officials said they are caught up with a backlog of income tax returns and the warning notices are going out earlier than usual this year.

The notices warn action will be taken if the balance is not paid within 15 days.

Brisk Winds, Sun Are Predicted

The current weak weather disturbance noted in the Queen Charlotte area apparently is a little too feeble to produce rain in this area, weatherman William Mackie said here today.

"It will be sunny this afternoon and tomorrow with brisk winds," he said. "Maximum temperatures today and tomorrow will be about 68 degrees."

A layer of moist air topped by dry air will produce some sea fog on the shores and low-lying areas tonight and Thursday, he said.

Alberni Civil Defense Group To Ignore Stein

ALBERNI—The Alberni Civil Defense Committee plans to carry on independently of Major Gen. C. R. Stein, B.C. civil defense co-ordinator.

The decision, subject to the approval of the City Council, was reached at a meeting of the Alberni committee called to discuss a letter received from Gen. Stein.

The letter stressed "that from a civil defense point of view, it is absolutely necessary that a unified organization covering both Alberni and Port Alberni is vital, and, furthermore, that until such unification is achieved no civil defense set-up will be satisfactory."

MAYOR FAVORED AS LIBERAL CANDIDATE

Victoria's Percy George Likely To Be Named To Contest Esquimalt Legislative Seat

There are strong indications that Mayor Percy George of Victoria will be drafted for the Coalition nomination in the Esquimalt by-election at a meeting of Liberals of the district arranged for Aug. 2.

The meeting will be held at Langford Community Hall with delegates from all parts of the riding, which stretches from Esquimalt township to Cobble Hill, taking part.

Talk of Mayor George for the candidature is growing and several prominent officials of the party have expressed the view the chief magistrate of the city "is the man for the job."

Mayor George, who is completing his term of office as head of the City Council at the end of the year, has expressed interest in the nomination.

Following the naming of their choice, Liberal party officials will arrange a joint nomination convention with the Conservatives, who have stated publicly they will support a Liberal nominee and not seek nomination of a Conservative.

C.C.F. Will Campaign On Hospital Issue

C.C.F. offensive in the fight for the Esquimalt seat in the provincial Legislature is going to be directed mainly at the Coalition administration's handling of hospital insurance.

This was indicated at a Jordan River meeting Monday night when Frank Mitchell, young candidate of the C.C.F. for the seat, opened his campaign.

Grant McNeill, Vancouver, provincial president of the C.C.F. spoke as well as Mitchell, who was named candidate early in the year.

The Socialist group's solution to hospital insurance financing problems was the main topic.

A roll-back of premiums to $33 and $21 was promised as well as abolition of co-insurance. The loss in revenue would be made up by the C.C.F. from surplus revenue.

It was explained that in 1950, for example, $10,000,000 above the amount passed by the Legislature was used to redeem bonds and improve the sinking fund. There still was a $3,000,000 surplus.

"The Coalition had more than enough to subsidize the hospital insurance service for the benefit of all the people," said Mitchell.

Asks Extension Of Stall Trial Time

A two-month extension on her three-month trial project of distributing surplus food to the city's needy from a free stall in the Public Market was asked of the city today by Mrs. Barbara Green, volunteer welfare worker, and originator of the stall idea.

The request will go before finance committee meeting Thursday. On June 14, the committee favored the three-month trial. Declaring the stall has proved successful, Mrs. Green asked to be allowed to carry on in September and October.

Mabel Buys Juice Jug
Says Demand So Great!

By PENNY SAVER

"Allo, good friend," said I to Mabel this morning. "Allo, yourself," she answered.

"What's for sure?" I asked. "Nothing for sure," she said, "except maybe that I've been opening large tins of juice for the past five minutes trying to fill a new plastic store jug, that I bought yesterday."

"Neat little jug, this, with its capacity for 32 ounces of the juice and six pliable plastic tumblers. I certainly needed a storehouse for juice the way my junior laps up the stuff. Think he was a blotter or something."

I was still in the store, and it worked out to 11 inches long, 6 1/2 inches wide and 7 1/2 inches deep. The one I took home, after I'd paid me dollar and 98 cents, was yellow. Others are in red.

"What's the matter," said Mabel finally, "you're not talking today?"

"A fine question," I said, "I had my mouth open for five minutes and thought I might as well close it until you'd had your quarter's worth of conversation."

After thanking her for the tidbits of news thought I'd mention a new lipstick brush I'd seen that morning. Only trouble with Mabel, when she gets hold of this type of brush she lets go like a billboard painter with a glue brush!

It's the very latest in brush cases, designed with golden case and black-as-night head. To work this pencil-like set you press a button at end of the case to release the brush. Out it jumps, ready for use. By pressing the button again it will draw it back into the depths of the case, faster than a turtle can hide his little head.

Course, I stand by a lipstick brush. It's the slickest way to save on lipstick. You can continue to pull something out of the case long after another non-brush user has bought a new tube of lipstick.

For this very fashionable bit of luxury, $2.75.

Not far from the brush, sat a summer special that's here for a few weeks yet. A blue grass fragrance in a bottle, complete with atomizer, for not the usual $3.20 price, but instead only $2.20.

At this point Mabel thanked me for calling and asked would I mind if she got back to the orange juice cans.

Have all ingredients at room temperature when mixing yeast dough

"Might say, too, that all I paid for the set was $2."

"By the way, while I was in town I also bought a plastic toaster cover. They're quite the gadget. Figured if I put the cover over the toaster while it was still warm it would look like an icing-covered cake, but 'twas not so. I found out it's a better type heat-treated plastic. It keeps out the dust, as well as hide our battle-scarred toaster."

"A good-size it is, too, I might add. I measured the cover while Corsage bouquets of red roses and white stocks were presented to the bride and her mother, Mrs. C. D. Davis. Following the presentation of gifts, which were concealed in a wishing well, refreshments were served from a lace-covered table, centred with a two-tiered bride cake. Those present were Mesdames J. Redgment, A. Creelman, H. Smith, W. Green, C. Westby, G. Lawrence, M. Boycock, H. Deanes, H. Holdsworth, B. Wadsworth, B. Cue, Misses Beverley Tan, Audrey Harrison, Althea Redgment, Diane Michell, Norma Creelman, Joan Chandler, Shirley Chandler, Marion Lawrence, Virginia Davis, Sally Hawthornethwaite and Isabel Whisker.

Spanish Cream Parfait

Strained baby foods, the kind you buy in drug and grocery store baby food departments, can be used to make a variety of delightfully cool summer treats. One of the most tempting is Spanish Cream Parfait, an attractive dessert which will make all the family ask for more.

One tablespoon gelatin, two cups milk, 2 eggs, separated, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 can strained peaches, 1 can strained apple sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon sugar. Soak gelatin in 1/2 cup of the milk. Scald remainder of milk, then add gelatin, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Combine slightly beaten egg yolks with sugar, salt, and vanilla, then add slowly to milk and gelatin. Beat until mixture hardens. Beat with a rotary beater until soft. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into custard mixture. Combine strained peaches and apple sauce, lemon juice, sugar, blending thoroughly. Place gelatin mixture and peach-apple sauce alternately into tall glasses. Chill. Yield: 6 parfait glasses.

Arab World Loves Egyptian Singer Of Peasant Stock

CAIRO (AP)—There's an evening, every month, when all the radios of the Arab world are tuned in on Om Kalsoum's program, broadcast from Cairo.

The "Nightingale of the Middle East" is on the air on the first Thursday of every month. Her rich, melodious, passionate voice flows from tens of thousands of sets in homes and public places, in shops and taxis, in cities and the villages.

Om Kalsoum has no peers in this part of the world. Her name is known from the Lebanon down to the tip of Arabia. Her admirers range from kings, princes and pashas down to the workers and fellahs (peasants). There can be no successful social event in Cairo, Alexandria or elsewhere in Egypt without Om Kalsoum. Often she is invited to perform in neighboring countries. Even her very high fees do not cool off the enthusiasm of those who want "The Nightingale" at their parties.

The dark, tall and strongly built singer is at ease with crowned heads and the poorest.

HAS SENSE OF HUMOR
Om Kalsoum likes to recall her origin. She is a fellah (peasant) and she displays the main characteristic of the Egyptian land worker: a keen sense of humor and an unmatched gift for jokes and puns. Her sayings are as famous as her songs.

Om Kalsoum was born at Simbellawen, North Egypt, in 1899. She was a teen-ager when she started singing the Koran. Her fame rocketed. By the middle '30's she was crowned the greatest singer of the Arab world. Besides her personal appearances, she sang at the radio and appeared in several Egyptian films.

Her fees soared with her fame. The Koran chanter, back at Simbellawen, earned an average of three pounds ($8.61) a month. Today Om Kalsoum receives fees as high as 1,000 Egyptian pounds ($2,870) for a single performance. Her radio programs net her around $34,440 a year.

Om Kalsoum's name has been romantically linked with several Egyptian high society members, but the 32-year-old singer has never married.

She lives in a comfortable villa on the banks of the Nile, in Zamalek, a residential district of Cairo. Om Kalsoum is a member of the Order of Kamal. The distinction was awarded to her by King Farouk, after the monarch's first marriage in 1938.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The Way You Swing Arms Influences Walking Grace

The way a woman swings her arms when she walks makes a great difference in the way she looks (whether graceful or awkward, smooth or jerky), yet this factor is seldom mentioned.

When your arms are free of bundles, and you have only a purse, do not go to either extreme in your arm swing. We are likely to propel ourselves along with the arm motion, or let our arms hang heavy at our sides while we glide along zombie fashion.

The correct motion should come freely and naturally from the shoulders, like the pendulum in a grandfather's clock. The arms should not be stiff but relaxed at the elbow. However, there should be no real bending of the elbow. We do not want to be dog-paddling women who flail the air with our forearms.

The length of your arm swing depends on your height, but it should be no greater or less than your natural graceful swing. You will find that this is just a little in front of the forward thigh. If you are conscious of your arms flying ahead of you, you may be sure you are being too energetic. Let the swing be relaxed and natural. Overweight women have to exert an effort to overcome the tendency to a too restricted, or non-existent arm-swing.

If you are carrying bundles keep the bundle weights evenly distributed in each arm to avoid a lopsided carriage. If you have an envelope-type pocketbook you can carry it in one hand and go ahead with your natural swing.

If you must hold a heavier or different type pocketbook, be sure that you do so in such a way as not to add to width of your silhouette. Carry it a bit "offside."

Test the way your arm swing looks, either before a long mirror or in store windows. Establish your walk and natural swing before you pass before the window or the mirror and see how well you are swinging along.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Grace and Charm," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 57 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Offers Knitters Many Prizes

Knitting is moving up front as one of the big daily contest attractions for women at the Canadian National Exhibition opening in Toronto on Aug. 24.

You don't even need to bring a knitting needle! Wool, needles and patterns will be supplied by a nationally-known knitting company, the contest's sponsor, who as an extra bonus will also provide enough wool to finish the sock, or whatever it happens to be, at home.

This new knitting contest will be an hour long and take place each afternoon upstairs in the Coliseum. Two instructors will be available to explain contest rules and the item or garment to be knitted will be different each day.

Daily prizes will be $25 for first prize, $20 for second, $15 for third, $10 for fourth and $5 for fifth. The winners will be entertained at tea by Mrs. Kate Aitken, C.N.E. women's director.

No entry forms are necessary. Bring your friends or family and enjoy the fun. Maybe you'll win a prize and you're sure to take home some new needles along with your knitting.

Fifteen Minutes On Air— I Am Nearly Speechless

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I've had a new experience! Guest reporter on CKDA's "Roving Reporter" broadcast. Six different members of the Times editorial staff were named to fill in for Dave Armstrong this week, while he takes a holiday.

"What's Your Opinion?" Dave Stock was lead-off man last Monday. I came next—on Tuesday.

Columnist Art Stott had today's spot, Alleen Campbell will be asking questions tomorrow, on Friday you'll hear Pete Salaway's voice over the air, and on Saturday reporter Don Ingham will take over.

Sounds perfectly simple, clean cut and easy, doesn't it? But just try it some morning!

"Don't worry! It's a cinch!"

said Dave Stock when he came back from his early morning assignment. "Keep chatting. That's the whole thing in a nutshell!"

For 15 minutes I stood on Yates Street with a radio microphone in my hand—and chatted. I stopped people on their way to work, asked them their names, described their clothes, checked whether they were living here or just visiting.

The microphone, on its long cord, gave me just so much leeway for walking and no more. And if I couldn't find a likely subject to "chat" with within that space, I just had to talk to myself—or to genial Don Wilson, CKDA announcer, who was along to see that I didn't get too far "off the beam."

Accepted, Also Ignored

Everyone seemed to know I was an amateur at the mike.

People gazed at me from a distance and immediately assumed that look of being ready to break and run if I moved a step nearer. Some lowered their heads and charged right by me, some just looked at me in disdainful silence and a few gave me a wide berth by circling wide in a flanking movement that took them well out into the road.

Others—and my blessings on them—took pity on me. They stopped, listened, and answered my questions.

There was one unforgettable instant when I looked both ways on the street and couldn't see a person headed in my general direction.

Cold shivers ran up and down my back as I visioned what it would be like to talk to myself for several minutes.

Then, just when I was about to toss the mike to Don Wilson and run, an attractive young miss—window shopping on her way to work—saved the day.

Of course, when the 15 minutes was just at an end, there seemed to be any number of likely prospects walking on Yates Street. Perhaps they were lurking in doorways waiting for me to pack up and go back to my desk. Who knows?

Holiday Spot For Royalty

Main question I asked each person was "If it is true that Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip are to be given a week, free of engagements, on Vancouver Island, where would you suggest the holiday week be spent?"

Of the 10 people questioned, two said Parksville, one named Qualicum, two stood out for Victoria. Four would express no opinion (three of these were tourists in the city for a day and the fourth had only lived in Victoria a few months.)

The 10th person suggested Hatley Park. It was so long since I had heard the name, it took a minute to register that she was talking of what is now known as Combined Services College, Royal Roads.

Built by the late Hon. James Dunsinuir, one time Premier and then Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, the turreted castle stands in beautifully landscaped grounds looking out over Esquimalt Lagoon to the waters of Royal Roads, anchorage for naval ships since pioneer days.

Royalty has been entertained there in days past, when Mrs. James Dunsinuir was the gracious chateau. Princess Elizabeth's uncle, the Duke of Windsor was a guest at Hatley Park when he was circling the world as Prince of Wales.

Today it is a training college for young officers of the three services.

In October, when the royal visit is expected, classes will be in full swing. What would be done with cadets for a week, if it was chosen as the holiday spot for Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, was not solved by my young friend on the morning broadcast.

She did say, however, that as far as furnishings were concerned, she felt sure both the Princess and the Prince would not want ostentation. "They would want everything simple and plain," she said earnestly.

Miss Wendy Gilchrist on west coast holiday.

Ottawa Sub-Deb A Visitor

En route to San Francisco where she will join her aunt, Miss Fran Claudet, director and choreographer of the internationally famed Ice Follies, is Miss Wendy Gilchrist, of Ottawa.

The Ontario visitor, who plans to spend another two weeks in the city, guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Claudet, Van-treight Lane, has taken an active interest in ice skating and studied for some time with the well-known skater, Shelton Galbraith.

"I don't intend to further my training as a skater, though," said Miss Gilchrist, now in her third year high school at Elmwood, a girls' private school, "I am taking special courses in interior decoration."

Before returning to her eastern home the vacationist will holiday in California for two weeks.

Miss Gilchrist is the daughter of Norman Gilchrist, director of the Ottawa Philharmonic, and Mrs. Gilchrist.

Horseback Riding On Forbidden Plateau

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Morriss, Austin Avenue, spent a week of their annual vacation at Forbidden Plateau Lodge and the second week at Qualicum Beach. Mr. Morriss is used to riding but Mrs. Morriss had never been on a horse until she rode into the

Offers Country Fare For Royal Visitors

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Durham County has put in its bid for a visit from Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh during the forthcoming Royal tour. Home-cooking is the special attraction.

George James, publisher-editor of the Canadian Statesman, a weekly newspaper, this week put Durham County's offer in his lead editorial.

Mr. James decried the stereotyped words of welcome, royalty traditionally meets in "the walled canyons of cities."

"A day in the country, mingling with people who really count would be a proper antidote," he says. In his editorial he also envisions the rural banquet which the women's institute could serve their Royal Highnesses.

"Deep - crusted chicken, pie, home-grown fresh vegetables and salads, home-made bread, cakes and butter, good old Durham County pumpkin and apple pies topped with genuine Devonshire cream (just about the only place in Canada you can get it), maple sugar from the woods hereabouts, and sweet apple cider..."

Prof. Arnaud Reid, M.A., Ph.D., D.Lit., of the University of London, who is at present lecturing on the philosophy of art at University of British Columbia summer school, will be in Victoria Friday to officiate at unveiling of the Cadborosaurus mural, painted by well-known artist, Jack Shadbolt, for the new Terra Cotta Dining Room opened recently. Invitations are being issued for the unveiling, which will take place late Friday evening.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding of Lorraine Burnett and Barrington Moncur Monday were Mrs. P. N. McWilliams and Richard, Mrs. J. McDonald, Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. G. Burnett, Seattle; Mrs. E. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. A. Walls, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. A. Tipton, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Andrews and David, Nanaimo.

WOMEN'S WEAR SALES HELPED BY THE MEN

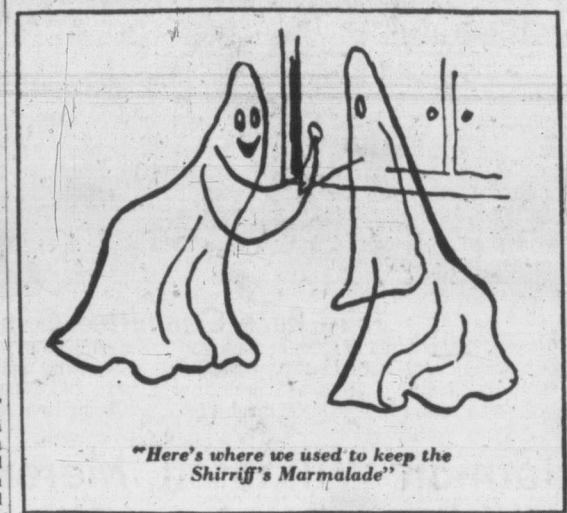

LONDON (CP)—London stores that have re-established the pre-war habit of one late-closing night a week find that when husbands accompany their wives on a clothes-buying spree, they are good sales-promoters.

Sales girls report that men generally advise their wives to pick the most expensive articles, and their choice is good. Most men prefer black or grey tailored suits, dresses that have full swinging skirts, blouses with lace—and hats that are not fussy.

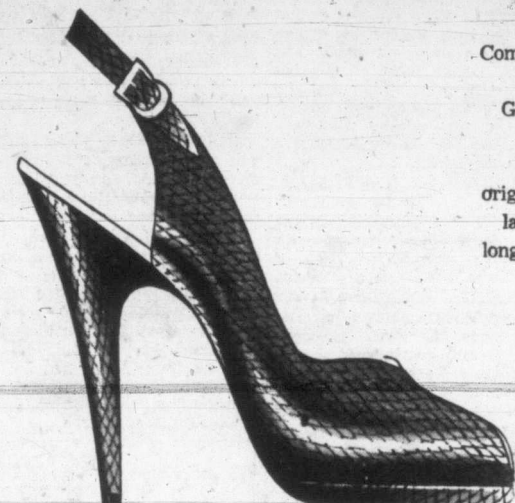

Stores find that evening customers spend less time looking around. They generally know what they want and make straight for it.

Little cakes, each filled with a canned cling peach half and a spoonful of sweetened halved strawberries covered over with meringue and baked, make a real party dessert.

WE TOOK THE PLUNGE

... 17 of 'em

If I never seen another swimming pool the rest of my life, that will be one too many, as I've belly-flopped into 17 different pools from here to L.A. and back. They don't call them pools down there, but "Plunges" and usually "Twin Plunges," 'cause one is for the grown-ups & the shallower for the kids. I mostly wallowed around in the shallow ones. Trude learned to dive in a place called Redding, & ever after that we were over in the deep one. I didn't much like this, 'cause I could no longer just sit on the bottom & keep cool. The first time I got into one of these dressing rooms, I felt a little embarrassed, or like I was in jail or in the army or something, 'cause they don't have booths or lockers, you simply stand up in a big bare room on the wet cement, take your clothes off & stuff them in a wire basket about the size kids have on their handlebars. You then slide the basket down a chute, & pin the safety-pin with your number on it, to your trunk. You slide the pin down the chute when you want 'em back. It's a swell idea after you catch on to it, & they all operate on this wire basket idea, but the FIRST time, as I say, you feel like you're out in the middle of Yates St., with no clothes on. I never did know whether to put my shoes in first or last, so I used to vary it a bit, sometimes at the bottom, sometimes at the top, but mostly on the bottom, with my socks & T-shirt in the middle & my folded britches crumpled over the whole mess. Twice I wore my wrist watch in the water, so that we were never quite sure if we were on Standard... Daylight Saving... or Pool Time. You can't get into any one of these "plunges" without first wading thru an ankle deep pool of chlorine, & then getting sprayed with the stuff from every known angle, and then getting more in your eyes when under you flop. On top of that a very sun-burned supervisor in a pith helmet tests the water every half hour, & adds more bucketsful of chlorine, so that by any chance you were packing around any kind of a bug, it would be a very dead bug awfully fast. To offset this tho', they are the prettiest places, all right out in the open, painted blue, & wire-fenced. I couldn't help but think how wonderful it have a few spread around in our town, especially so now that the Gorge waters are... well... now that they are... h-mm-m? The supervisors teach the kids to swim, as well as keep everything under sensible control, so that no smartie socks you on the boty with a wet towel.

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Italian Franca Faldini Does Hula In First Picture Part

By FRANKLIN ARTHUR
(For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—New to Hollywood is an Italian gal who will dance the hula in her first movie role.

If that sounds incongruous, so does her English. It's good, but it frequently lapses into such phrases as "hot stuff" and "that's the keed."

All this can be traced to the influence of the U.S. Army when it went into Franca Faldini's native Rome. She learned a lot of U.S. slang. Later she went to a school of English, with the result that she also speaks the polished variety.

POLISHED TONGUE

It was sufficiently polished, in fact, to win her a job as interpreter when Gregory Ratoff brought an American cast to Italy in 1948 to make "Black Magic." Ratoff gave her a minor part in the picture.

She studied to be a teacher, came to this country on a vacation this summer. Her path led to Hollywood for a visit with some of the folks she met on the Ratoff picture. She'd been in town a few days when a talent scout proposed a screen test.

Look After Her

What happens to girls when they leave home for the first time? See for yourself at the Odeon Theatre, in the technicolor story of sorority life, "Take Care of My Little Girl," now showing and starring Jeanne Crain and Jeffrey Hunter.

VICTORIA COLLEGE GIRLS ENTERED IN FASHION SHOW

Six Victoria College girls will be featured tonight in an informal fashion show at the Odeon Theatre, presenting 1951 back-to-college fashions.

The girls will be Marion Gibbs, Gertrude Cunningham, Carol Wootton, Lenora Foster, June Orchard and Lynne Balcolm.

The fashion show will be held at 9 p.m. and will link in with the picture about college life, "Take Care of My Little Girl." Clothes to be modeled will be supplied from the young misses department of the Hudson's Bay department store.

Paulette Goddard Reveals Her Newest Admirer 12-Year-Old

PLYMOUTH, Eng. (UP)—Actress Paulette Goddard was secretly wooed by a young New Yorker en route from the U.S. on the liner, Ile de France, she revealed last night.

The movie star said two notes and one long letter were pushed under her cabin door by Dick Blackstone.

Blackstone told reporters: "My private life is my own. All I gotta say is she was on the ship, she's beautiful, so I chased her!"

Paulette, who is on a European tour with Anita Loos to hunt adventures for television films, said the letters would be added to her collection.

"Unfortunately the author is only 12," the thrice-married actress sighed. "I told him to wait until he's 21."

The lawyer, Charles Torem, said he still thinks there's a chance of a reconciliation.

Rita has said she'll put off her Nevada divorce for six months if the prince will co-operate with her in the legal proceedings. Aly Khan's answer to this ultimatum has not been made public.

Miss Hayworth's lawyer, Bartley Crum, has said a reconciliation definitely is out and that Rita wants a speedy divorce.

The Orinoco and Zambesi rivers each have a total length of 1,600 miles.

OUTSTANDING ARTISTS

Epperson, Jacobsen Give Interesting School Concert

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

A recital of distinguished calibre was presented Tuesday morning at Victoria High School.

The two artists, Gordon Epperson, cellist, and Leonard Jacobsen, pianist, left no doubt in the minds of their listeners that they are outstanding in their field in the Pacific northwest.

The recital, one of the series sponsored by the Summer School of Education, featured some of the most interesting music in the cello repertoire, and an all-modern group of piano solos.

Mr. Epperson, who has played under some of the foremost conductors of the day, has a style of almost casual ease, rising from absolute control and familiarity with his instrument.

It is not, however, a familiarity which has bred inattention to the meaning and elements of the music. His tone is lyric, deep and warm without loss of texture. This, and the thoughtful shaping of phrase was particularly striking in the rich cantabile of Hure's "Air."

For pure classic pleasure, it would be difficult to excel the two artists' performance of the Boccherini Sonata in A Major.

Leonard Jacobsen's sensitive touch, so great an asset in accompanying, brought great beauty to his Debussy and Ireland solos. Such atmospheric music as Ireland's "Island Spell" was tonally, most pleasing.

Agar Found Guilty, Faces Second Trial

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Handsome actor John Agar, convicted of drunken driving, faced another trial today on a similar charge.

A municipal court jury of nine women and three men deliberated less than three hours Tuesday before finding the ex-husband of film star Shirley Temple guilty of drunk driving on Wilshire Boulevard Jan. 13.

While the panel was deliberating, jurors were being selected to hear the actor's trial on another drunk driving charge. Agar was arrested on the second charge, March 9 when police allegedly noticed him driving erratically in North Hollywood.

The word "diamond" originally was derived from the Greek "adamas," meaning adamant.

Prize-Winning Author Faces Morals Charge

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Thomas Harris Downey, 44, winner of the O. Henry memorial award for the best short story of 1950, has been arrested on a morals charge, police reported Tuesday.

The district attorney's office said the charge was indecent behavior with a minor.

Downey's prize-winning story, "The Hunters," was published last summer.

Paris (AP) — Georges Bidault, leader of the French government, arrived in Seattle today for a 10-day visit. He is the first French leader to visit the United States since the end of World War II. Bidault is expected to arrive in Seattle on Monday. He will be accompanied by his wife, Marie, and two children. Bidault is a member of the French Academy and has been a member of the French government since 1944. He is currently the president of the French Republic. Bidault is expected to visit the University of Washington and the University of Puget Sound during his stay in Seattle. He will also be giving a speech at the University of Washington. Bidault is expected to leave Seattle on Tuesday. He will be traveling to Portland, Ore., and then to San Francisco, Calif., before returning to Paris.

former premier and foreign minister, was asked by President Vincent Auriol, today, to try to form a new government.

Bidauld, a member of the Government Republican Popular, was expected to decline the offer, today, because of inability to get enough support.

Earlier, today, Auriol's previous choice for the premiership, Radical Socialist Rene Mayer, failed to win a vote of confidence from the National Assembly because the M.R.P. abstained from voting.

Channel Attempt

PARIS (P) — Russell Tongay, father of Florida's "Water Babies," said Tuesday he had given the Ministry of Interior a signed statement promising that his children, Bubba, five, and Kathy, one, would not try to swim the English Channel from the French "shore."

Tongay repeated, however, that at the end of the week he would board a yacht in the English Channel "off the French shore." Why "Well, perhaps we'll do a little fishing or swim

He said he would board the yacht "South of Cape Griz Nez," a traditional departure point for channel swimmers, but wouldn't name the date.

The issue was raised by Ben White, president of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers Union, Local 1 (C.C.L.). The L.R.B. has wanted the union may be decertified because 1,000 members in wooden shipyards have refused to work overtime.

The board maintains a union decision to stop overtime constitutes an illegal strike.

Personality Of

Public Recognized

Teachers today regard pupils as individuals, each with his own personality, emotions, make-up and intellectual ability.

A. C. Kendrick, principal of Ottawa Normal School, told Victoria Kiwanis Club members at their Empress Hotel luncheon Tuesday.

Educators must be constantly aware of the fact that emotion rather than intellect governs the behavior of most people, Mr. Kendrick said, and that learning to live happily is more important than just learning how to earn a living.

He also blamed low salaries for an impending shortage of teachers in Canada and the United States, where he predicted that many classrooms may soon be without teachers.

Vancouver Men Held In Meat Theft Ring

VANCOUVER (CP)—Consolidated charges were read Tuesday against six Vancouver men accused of operating a meat theft ring.

The Crown claimed "thousands of dollars" worth of meat was stolen from Gainer's meat packing plant here through a shipper and delivered by a slipper trucker to outside stores.

Preliminary hearing, opened for Howard Lounsbury, 35, truck driver; Jack Harrison, 28, shipping clerk; Stanley E. Johnson, 39, owner of two meat markets and part-owner of another; Norman Watson, 36, part-owner and manager of a meat market; John Cullen Harvie, 28, meat market manager; and Gerard Ryan, meat market manager.

After the first 12 hours moisture from the beans should have made the salt into paste solution. If not, the brine should be started by adding one heaping measuring cup of cold water.

When large pickings are being added, put a half-inch layer of salt over each two-inch layer of beans, but in any case put a sprinkling of salt over each picking regardless of the depth.

Beans preserved in this manner are good until the beginning of April, but sometimes we hear complaints of toughness and excessive salt taste after winter storage.

The causes of toughness in using beans which are past their prime, or soaking them too long before cooking. Two hours is the best soaking period and the water should be changed every 20 minutes. Cook for one hour, draining and refilling with boiling water after the first 30 minutes.

Last year we heard of a number of gardeners who grew large crops of varieties unsuitable for deep freezing. This old-fashioned method comes in useful under such conditions.
